Who'll be city's next mayor? Jean or Elinor?

By NANCY HILLS

CARMEL MAYOR Jean Grace says there is a clear-cut difference between her and Elinor Laiolo, her opponent for the mayor's seat in the April 10th city election.

She simply cites the votes and positions they have taken on various city issues. Grace's list includes her years of work on the beach walkway and restoration project, votes in favor of the tree-cutting ordinance and purchase of the Handley property, support of a water meter moratorium during the drought; all projects or issues in which City Councilmember Elinor Laiolo took an opposing view.

At the beginning of her campaign, Grace stated she believed this election would be about "long-range planning rather than getting caught up in the minute." Grace said she believes in taking the long-range view.

"My feeling is this town has a history that it should continue to look at more than quantitative issues. We need to look at things in more than how much they cost," adding that it does need to have a balanced budget.

Grace said that when she took office, she promised to involve more people in city government and that she believes she has accomplished that.

"I'm very much in favor of neighborhood groups, I am very much in favor of citizen advisory committees. I am very much in favor of informal meetings between the business people, city staff and commissioners," she said.

The city needs to look beyond its borders when dealing with many issues, she added.

"I also feel, unlike some people, that the folks who live on the periphery of Carmel have a lot at stake in what the City of Carmel does and I like to hear from them," she said, "though obviously we have to listen first to the voters."

'My feeling is this town has a history that it should continue to look at more than quantitative issues. We need to look at things in more than how much they cost.'
— Jean Grace

The issue of annexation, she said is irrelevant. Annexation can only be initiated by the area that is to be annexed and she voted, along with the council, not to pursue the annexation.

The primary problems the city and area are facing, Grace said, include the ongoing water problem, Highway 1 and circulation, but "the biggest problem is what to do about the massive and unsightly houses," Grace said.

People believe that speculation homes in themselves will always be large and out of scale, she said, but "let's face it, if you have good zoning and land use laws then even a house built for speculation is going to be built to the code."

The solution, she feels, is fivefold: good design review, deeper sideyard setbacks, smaller volume in the front of the house and an open space requirement.

"I don't think any structure should be allowed to go from one sideyard setback clear over to the other sideyard setback, at least the way sideyards are now. I think we need the front of every lot a smaller volume of the structure at the front of the lot than anywhere else on the lot," Grace said. "I think we need to have a requirement for earth-to-sky open space. We already have a requirement for open space, but it can be asphalted. That what we need to try and avoid, because we can't plant trees in asphalt."

By the year 2000, Grace said she hopes "that we've calmed down proliferation of massive, unsightly houses" and "preserve much of our open space."

"Obviously, as old houses get older and aren't worth sprucing up, people are going to tear them down and put in other houses, but hopefully we've seen the last of the behemoths," she said.

"I also hope by the year 2000 we can maintain small-scale, good quality commercial district, that has a charm for people who live here and come here," she said. "I think the trends could be something else. Unfortunately, the government and people of Carmel have very little control over the increasing high rents."

Citing franchise and chain stores such as Banana Republic, Nature Co. and Saks Fifth Avenue that can afford high rents, Grace said, "Some of them are neat stores, but let's face it, they are not the little Mom and Pop stores.

"I'm not an advocate of rent control, but I am an advocate of the city taking some positive steps, if possible, to promote residentially oriented businesses," she said. "I don't know what can be done, but I think we have to face it and talk about to see what can be done."

Traffic is another issue that should be addressed and solved in the future.

"I think we need to cater to pedestrians more, we need to cater to bicyclists more. I don't think streets are for cars, they are for people. You must allow commercial areas like Carmel more of a sense of pedestrian over the car, like in The Barnyard," Grace said.

She suggested investigating changing more areas in the commerical district to one-way streets, with "delivery vehicles on one side making their deliveries, and other side a fair-

WHO WILL be Carmel's next mayor come Tuesday, April 11? Will Carmel vote on April 10 to retain incumbent Mayor Jean Grace (left), or elect current city council member Elinor Laiolo? The mayor's term is two years; three candidates are also vying for two four-year seats on the council in other races (see page 3 for candidate statements).

By NANCY HILLS

COUNCILWOMAN ELINOR Laiolo has spent four years on the council and now is ready to take on the job of mayor.

During her four years Laiolo has often been the lone voice in opposition and has taken some stances that may not have always been popular, like her opposition to the beach walkway, the tree ordinance, the water meter moratorium and the purchase of the Handley property.

Laiolo has stated she never opposed the beach restoration or walkway, but felt taking funds from the Coastal Conservancy gave up local control. She also has said that she did not believe that the engineering report was being completely followed during the beach restoration.

She voted against the tree ordinance, she said, because it "gets into property rights."

The ordinance requires property owners to get a permit to cut down four types of native trees with trunks of 6 inches or over.

The water moratorium, Laiolo states, also interferes with local control.

"Moratoriums on the use of water within a jurisdiction should be up to the jurisdiction and usurped or requested of another governmental agency. This is regulating th use of land and that responsibility rests with each jurisdiction, The conservation programs have worked successfully to stretch the supply but the real task is to provide new supplies so that those who are living here need not worry about rationing and so those who develop their lots of record may do so."

Looking to the future, the year 2000, Laiolo said she hopes she "would see still the village that has made Carmel what it is. The fact it is one square mile and has the same geographical limitations since its founding as a city. I would hope that would never change. I think that is one of the prime characteristics of the name Carmel-by-the-Sea.

"It is not easy to maintain in the face of what has been, of course, for many years thoughts about regional government. But at the same time, those who live here and work here came here because of the uniqueness that stems primarily from being one square mile. To make any change in that would totally lose the uniqueness."

Within that square mile, Laiolo said she sees "an integrated community, where people who live and work and are dependent upon each other for their survival."

The city also has an intense commercial district.

"I believe there is an element of that, because the city government wouldn't be able to function if it didn't. It is an emotional issue to some folks, but I think, it is like any corporation or any business operation where your source of revenue comes from one area and another area is the benefactor of those sources of revenue. I guess intellectually, you would have to say that's what our city is about."

She hopes to foster the understanding of the relationship between the benefits the residents receive from that tax base and the need for a strong commercial district. But there could be trouble on the horizon.

"If you look at the number of vacant shops now, we have reason to worry. It could be that the landlords are looking for opportunity to provide the kind of service or business or product that has been associated with Carmel-by-the-Sea. Also there may be a problem with the level of rent or maybe it is just that the general economics of the nation does not support new shops opening," she said.

Whether there will be more vacant shops in the future, Laiolo said she could not say.

"I don't think I can really answer that because I don't know the economics well enough to project," she said.

However, she has seen it happen before.

"I grew up and lived in a town that had that happen, Richmond, which became a ghost town because of shops moving out of the central commerical area to another part of the main streets. Also the advent of shopping malls and shopping centers. I wouldn't want to see that happen," Laiolo said.

In the residential district, Laiolo said in the year 2000 she would "hope that families would be able to live in the city in the residential area. But that's another thing that depends on the economy — the ability to purchase land. In 10 years time, we may have all grandparents here," she said with a laugh.

Recently the houses being built in the residential district have created problems because "the houses appear to be larger and appear to be closer together."

"I think the square footage and ground cover are the same as they used to be when the last ordinances were written. The fact is there are more and more houses today than there were," she said. "Consequently, like when you are playing Monopoly, and you buy houses to put on your property, there is going to be less space. But I think the major point to remember is that every house built up to today has been built up to the same requirements and within limitations of the code and that code has been in place."

The appearance of the new houses, she said, "presents a problem on an emotional level because it changes the look of the residential district. I think that the major emotional issue is the filling up of space, resulting from additional building on available lots of record. But I think through the design review process that the planning commission has now established, some of those concerns can be alleviated."

Laiolo added that she would "like to see the cottage type home on our lots, but I don't know if that is economically feasible for people who purchase land. I think we have to be careful in allowing a property owner to develop his land. The restrictions can't be placed on development that might be con-

Long and short of it

Dear Editor:

It's always curious to me how many experts there are in the community of Carmel-by-the-Sea who do not live here.

I was recently intrigued by an article from a San Francisco journalist who stated that the floodgates were opened to more building during the time I was associated with the Carmel City Council. Where has this person been? There are no floods around here! Actually it's the drought and the threat of water rationing by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District over the past four or five years that has caused many of the Carmel property owners to take the philosophy of "now or never" and to build on their lots of record.

I believe the issue of water has had more significant impact on the large amount of construction during the past year alone. Nothing like a little fear to get everyone rushing for a building permit.

One of the big discussions in recent months concerns the size of homes being built in Carmel. I have noticed that I've received part of that credit also. Actually the size of the Carmel home has grown over the past two decades, as our community moves from a part-time residents' community to a more permanent one.

In fact, the former council formed a partnership in the Gamble property. Nobody seemed to complain at that time, even when very large homes were built on that development. Most Long-Timers have recognized these demographic changes because they have had many years to see the evolution of our community. Short-Timers tend to be like No-Timers — immediate experts! After a few years in the community, they seem to have all the answers.

I have noticed quite a bit of discussion on residents' organizations in recent months. I concur with City Councilman Ken White, who said he felt they were a good thing. I also agree that the Carmel Citizens Committee was the closest thing to an organization that benefitted our community.

Unfortunately we do not have a residents' association now. Well we do have the CRA, which includes residents and non-residents as its members (like its past president and their Citizen of the Year), however, the CRA is more of a political committee. I, for one, would love to see a bonafide residents' organization that would provide us with a place to exchange ideas and become a benefit to Carmel citizens. A good thought for the future?

It will be an interesting election this year. In the mayoral race we have two Long-Timers running for office. Both Mayor Jean Grace and City Councilmember Elinor Laiolo have spent a lot of time and effort in community work over the years.

We have a different situation this time for council seats. Two Long-Timers — City Councilman Bob Fischer and planning commission chairwoman Carla Ramsey are in the running. Then we have a relatively Short-Timer, Barbara Brooks, who is the candidate of the CRA. Brooks may have the same problem as candidate (Clayton) Anderson did during the last election, by being too polarized and perceived as being more interested in the CRA rather than the community as a whole.

It will be interesting to see how our city votes, but, of course, the main thing is to get out to the polls.

Supports Ramsey

Dear Editor:

I support Carla Ramsey for city council because I am tired of our city being run by retired public employees. Its about time we elect people with private sector experience and good judgment.

Carla is a fine person. Unlike some, Carla is a longtime resident of our community. She raised a family here. She understands what it means to be a Carmelite. And she understands what it takes to keep our neighborhoods the way we want them.

On the other hand, I just can't support people who have lived here only a short time.

I can't support people who have no experience serving on the planning commission.

I can't support people who want to reduce the size of our homes and prevent families from living here.

On April 10, I am voting for experience and qualification. I am voting for Carla Ramsey.

Impressive candidate

Dear Editor:

The election of Barbara Brooks to the city council would be the best thing that could happen to Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Barbara's philosophy is based on preservation — of our village character, our trees, our culture and our open space. She has a great ability to communicate with people of diverse interests and to build consensus. She was president of the Carmel Residents Association but is also one of the few non-business people (and the ONLY council candidate), who regularly attends Carmel Business Association meetings.

Long ago I noticed what an intelligent, articulate speaker Barbara was at the General Plan hearings — urging that this backbone of our city not be weakened. And there she was at city council and planning commission meetings — speaking out — trying to protect Carmel from the forces which were impinging upon it.

Barbara is involved in many local organizations — CRA, Tor House, the Mayor's Architectural Preservation Committee, Friends of Sunset and on and on, but as a worker — not a joiner — willing, for instance, to help out selling food at the Friends of Sunset performance concession or to chair her church's annual rummage sale.

Finally, my conviction that Barbara Brooks is a balanced, fair candidate, willing to listen to and evaluate all sides has been borne out. She is the ONLY candidate among the five running for mayor and council endorsed by ALL three groups who endorse candidates in Carmel: The Carmel Residents Association, the Carmel Board of Realtors and the Sierra Club. That, in my opinion, is impressive!

EDITORIAL

Pine Cone recommends
Elinor Laiolo, Bob Fischer and Carla Ramsey

TWO CANDIDATES are seeking election as Mayor of Carmel-by-the-Sea on April 10: Incumbent Mayor Jean Grace, and challenger Elinor Laiolo, who has served on the council since 1986. We believe a change in leadership is necessary and endorse Elinor Laiolo for mayor.

Elinor Laiolo's independence, interest and experience deserve recognition and support. And while Elinor has been criticized for voting against buying the Hodges property and accepting state grants for the beach walkway, Elinor's dissent focused attention on important, and otherwise neglected, details which were of major financial and policy significance. It is easy to forget that informed dissent is more difficult to articulate than its more expedient cousin of ill-informed consent. Elinor deserves recognition for standing up for her positions against an often indifferent council.

Elinor has capably represented the city and devoted hundreds of hours to understanding the issues. Her research and preparation for meetings is well known: Elinor works hard. And while her personal views may not always coincide with ours, she is an effective councilmember who stands for integrity, process and public involvement in City Hall.

On the other hand, Jean Grace has not demonstrated a willingness to lead the city council, to challenge the public nor focus community resources on problem solving. Instead, there has been too much emphasis on political rhetoric and too little emphasis on the nuts and bolts of government. Many problems such as street maintenance are not high-visibility issues but are important and have deserved council attention. And for two years the city council has failed to take action to implement the 1988 Revised General Plan, adopt historic preservation standards or act on the revised R-1 District design review standards proposed by the planning commission last year. We regret that Jean Grace has been unable to provide the necessary leadership to make progress on these and other issues.

Regarding the two open seats on the city council, we believe that Carmel Planning Commission Chairman Carla Ramsey and incumbent Councilmember Bob Fischer should be elected. Our criteria is simple: we need qualified, experienced council members. We must elect candidates who understand and have witnessed the changes Carmel has seen and who have the vision and leadership to guide this community for the next four years. These are challenging times.

Bob Fischer was first elected to the city council in 1986 and has served us well. He has proved his independence and exercised common sense, which at times has been sadly absent from city council deliberations. Bob Fischer has represented the basic needs of the community. He deserves another term on the council.

Carla Ramsey has served the community since 1986 on the planning commission. Last year Carla was unanimously elected chairman by her colleagues. Of the three candidates seeking election to a council seat, only Carla Ramsey has served on the planning commission. Carla is a businesswoman who works downtown and has lived here for over 25 years. Since land use and planning issues dominate the city council's agenda, planning commission experience is solid preparation for service on the city council. Carla Ramsey has proven her ability to make common sense decisions and to provide strong leadership on the planning commission. Her support and defense of our traditional architectural and community values is demonstrated by her record. She has earned a seat on the city council.

While we do not endorse Barbara Brooks, she has worked hard to be a viable candidate. Barbara has developed an understanding of many issues but she has not served on the planning commission and does not have a record of public service. Having lived in the community for only a few years, we believe Barbara Brooks needs more time to develop a record on which her performance can be judged and for development of a full, well-rounded view of the community.

Our hope is that the people of Carmel elect a well-balanced city council not dominated by a single point of view. Instead, we need a mix of backgrounds, opinions and experiences on the city council. The three candidates we recommend will bring diverse perspective to the council.

And finally, all of the candidates seeking office deserve recognition for their contributions to the community. To each candidate, the Pine Cone offers its congratulations for entering the campaign and for their courage, dedication and personal sacrifice for sharing their opinions and platforms with us. Good Luck!

To our readers, your vote on April 10th for the candidates of your choice is most important.

CARMEL'S RESIDENTIAL neighborhoods are changing. Demolitions rose from four or five per year to 17 last year, an increase of 400 percent! Where one cottage nestled in the trees, two large houses now crowd together. It is a major goal of mine to take control of these changes in an effort to make them beneficial to the community.

There is a pressing need to stop the building of houses that are too large for their lots, leave no room for trees, and whose design is out of character with the village. I favor the concept now developing in the planning commission and council of requiring 45 percent or 50 percent open space, earth to sky. Serving on the Citizens' Committee for R-1 Design convinced me that all projects would benefit from the guidance of a small design-review committee that followed the project from the beginning of the permit process.

We need ordinances and a design-review process that blends new construction with old and protects the environment. I will give top priority to stopping the kind of houses built in the last few years such as those on Torres and 11th. Carmel has competent and responsible builders, but strong ordinances are required to protect us from the irresponsible few. I want to make trees a part of every planning decision. If we don't plan for trees we will lose our forest.

As a member of the mayor's Architectural Preservation Committee, I am learning that preservation is much more than saving buildings. It includes preserving and enhancing the total experience of Carmel-by-the-Sea: the trees and open space, our beach, irregular streets without sidewalks, architectual variety, and customs we cherish such as daily gathering with friends at the post office.

Employee parking is another serious and persistent problem. Building public garages is not a solution for employees who can't afford $1.50 an hour. Boulder, Colo. offers free bus passes to downtown workers in an innovative first-in-the-nation program sponsored jointly by private business and local government. This program is so successful that ridership was up 11 percent in the first year and Denver officials are looking into setting up a similar program. If the Boulder plan were instituted here, fewer cars driven into Carmel each day would reduce the number of parking spaces required and reduce the need for a large Sunset Center garage.

I have studied the Environmental Impact Report for Sunset Center parking. It recommends 270 spaces on the north and 337 spaces on the south for a total of 607 spaces. I am very concerned about the impact these structures would have on the air quality, noise levels, increased traffic, and aesthetics

FOUR YEARS ago, your overwhelming desire for a change in government at the city council level led me to enter the 1986 election.

It is my sincere belief that the actions of the City Council over these past four years have greatly contributed to the mending of the aggravation that existed between the business community and the residents of our unique village. We fully recognize that we need each other and the best results can be obtained if we work together as a team.

Many projects that were on paper for decades were brought to a final completion. Now it is time for the "fine-tuning" of all of our efforts to ensure Carmel-by-the-Sea's unique position in our version of paradise.

I pledge to you my continued efforts towards maintaining our special quality of life. Resident concerns are to be of first priority.

I stand alone as a candidate with no ties or commitments to any special interests, groups or associations.

I seek only, your personal and individual confidence and support. My 31 years with the Carmel Police Department plus four years as your elected Councilmember provides me with a unique insight to our lovely community needs.

I support:

- A full parking structure at Mission and Eighth.
- Residential parking permits
- A reduction in the bulk and density in the new housing being developed within the city.
- 50 percent open space requirement in the residential area.
- A strong Design Review Committee.
- Full cultural & recreation enhancement and expansion.

Objectives to think about:

- A day care center for the children of Carmel and its sphere of influence.
- A safe skateboard area for the young and young at heart.
- (And should we consider the formation of a squirrel kidnap squad to bring back the little rascals to Carmel - I miss them)
- Inject a little humor into this campaign.

The so-called "Eastwood" years, 1986-1988 provided a remarkable change in community attitude in relation to city government.

Citizen input was welcomed and ELECTION DAY is drawing near in Carmel-by-the-Sea! Soon we can settle back to friendly pursuits and business.

Over the last two years I have tried to ensure that the people who live here are in charge. Working together, we have accomplished many necessary and thoughtful objectives. Serving for years on the library board and two General Plan committees, for five years as chairperson of the Beach and Scenic Walkway Task Force, and as mayor for two years, I am proud to be the leader of increased community involvement in these efforts. Now, I welcome this opportunity to clarify certain issues.

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY:

Our city has over $3 million in reserve funds — almost half of our annual budget and more than we have ever had. This is a responsible cushion against unexpected expenses. Again, on a straight-line projection of our '89-'90 FY budget, we are ahead in expected revenues and just even on expenditures.

Also, the ratio of our debt-service to our assessed valuation would begin to trigger concern if it were near 10 percent; in fact, our city's ratio is less than one-quarter of 1 percent. Finally, my administration has spent a higher proportion of budget than ever spent before, on street and drainage problems. Over half a million dollars in the last two and one-half years have been spent on such necessary projects.

ANNEXATION:

Voters and/or property owners within the legal boundaries of the sphere of influence of any city in California can make the decision to annex. Indeed, several annexations to our city have taken place in the last 70 years (including the Carmel Mission). However, on April 4, 1989, our city council voted on a resolution I helped to write, to not initiate annexations of developed areas outside the city.

OPEN SPACE:

From Mission Trail Park west to the Scenic Walkway on our shore; from Forest Hill and Torres Street parks south to the Hodges property, my opponent has shown her negative attitude about public open space and

AFTER SERVING four years on the City Council of Carmel-by-the-Sea, including two years as Mayor Pro Tempore, I am well aware of the needs of both the city and its residents.

Complimenting my years on the council and prior to my retirement, my work experience included administrative responsibility in the areas of program, personnel, budget and public relations.

I have the time to devote to the position of mayor and a sincere desire to represent Carmel-by-the-Sea as a unique city with its special requirements.

As the council's representative to various regional committees, I have always kept our city's best interests and the welfare of its residents foremost in the decision-making process.

The city needs effective and experienced leadership in order to maintain a positive

I AM a candidate for city council because I care deeply about our community. Having lived here for over 26 years, I have seen how Carmel has changed. I am concerned about our future. We can and must take control of our own destiny as we approach the year 2000. That means we must control the look and feel of our city — both residential and commercial — or we won't recognize it in a few years.

Strong design review reinforced with guidelines and standards that applicants and the public can understand will achieve the flexibility we need to protect our architectural character. Strong design review will aid us in blending old and new, large and small homes together. Let us not forget that diversity is where Carmel's character was born. And while we need measurable, objective standards, we must not regulate style and individuality out of existence.

Carmel must also not be so restrictive as to prevent families from living here. We can benefit from a diversity in home sizes and styles as we have since the early days of our community. After all, it made Carmel what it is today.

How we handle land use and planning issues will affect how our neighborhoods look in the future. My four years experience on the Carmel Planning Commission sets me apart from others. It is easy to talk about and use planning, but its another matter to make decisions. Experience counts.

As Chairman of the Planning Commission, I regret that many important planning commission decisions have been overturned for political reasons by the city council. I disagree: politics should not interfere with our responsibility to the long-range needs of Carmel's residents.

My record on the planning commission demonstrates that I mean what I say. I voted to reduce second floor development in the commercial district. I voted to reduce the number of homes built on the Bennett and of the surrounding neighborhoods. Unless these concerns can be mitigated, I cannot support this project.

I am well qualified to serve you on the city council. I have studied the issues and have regularly attended and participated in city council meetings. I have worked with people representing diverse interests and believe democracy is best served when everyone participates.

As president of the Carmel Residents Association, I have made the interest and welfare of the people who actually live in Carmel-by-the-Sea my top priority. As the only council candidate who regularly attends Carmel Business Association meetings, I have listened to their concerns and learned to appreciate their point of view.

I firmly believe that it is only by communicating with one another and working together that we can define our unique character and preserve it for the future. If you share my concerns for our community, I would appreciate your support on April 10.

acknowledged. A host of neighborhood associations were founded and active community involvement set a page of excitement in Carmel's book of history.

Projects, long neglected, were started with major accomplishments completed via Mayor Clint and our present Mayor, Jean Grace.

It was fun to be able to participate and be a part of Carmel's "awakening".

The only association that I belong to, and fully endorse, is the "Carmel-by-the-Sea Association" whose membership consists of every single individual within the confines of our city limits — all 5,000 of us.

It is extremely important that you vote for whichever candidate you choose. By doing so you express your love for our community and show that we really do care.

greenbelts. Her negative votes have been a public record against enhancement or purchase, and in the case of Mission Trail Park, a vote to sell part of it for development. It is my belief that the people of this community overwhelmingly support such projects, and I am proud to have been in the vanguard. Such amenities help the residents, businesses and visitors.

Many of our problems do not lend themselves to easy solutions; we must listen to each other, debate with civility, think through alternatives, and then have the courage to make difficult decisions.

I would be honored to continue serving as your mayor. My goals are to effectively manage growth; to preserve our quiet residential neighborhoods and to maintain the beauty of our forested village by the sea. Please vote your support for an active, positive mayor on April 10th, 1990.

direction in dealing with the many issues we face. Any expansion by annexation would be a revolutionary change which would dilute the quality of life and community services available in our village of Carmel-by-the-Sea. This would be a serious disadvantage to our tax dollar.

I believe that a sound system of government is one that not only meets the needs of the people but demonstrates positive, courteous community relations at every level and is fiscally responsible.

I feel qualified to provide the needed level of leadership inspired by a deep sense of responsiblity to the residents within our one square mile by the sea.

Kinnoul subdivisions. I am very proud of my record and it reflects, better than anything else, my deep concern and love for this community.

City Hall exists to keep us informed and serve our needs. We must be fiscally responsible and use our resources wisely. We must stretch our tax dollars. We must maintain the streets, provide open space and promote caring for our trees. We must strengthen our community values. And we must, above all else, preserve and protect Carmel-by-the-Sea for our children and grandchildren.

I am very pleased to have the support of all segments of the community. Nevertheless, I remain an independent candidate. I am not part of any special interest group and am not obligated to "rubber stamp" decisions. The only special interest I represent is the people of Carmel.

To that end, active public participation in government is vital. It contributes perspective and experience to our discussions and results in better decision making.

Serving this community is very special to me. Please support me with your vote on April 10th.

Jean Grace seeks another term

ly smooth low-speed flow of traffic."

"I'm not advocating changing the streets, I'm advocating having the streets such that the traffic can be very slow and smooth flowing without having to weave in and out of double-parked delivery trucks and at the same time a lot of crosswalks for people. I'm also in favor of Australian-type intersections for people, where people are encouraged to walk diagionally across intersections," she said.

To the purchase of the Hodges property earlier this year, which has become a campaign issue, Grace said, "The fact is that we bought it for more than the appraised value because the owners had no intention of selling it for the appraised value. They were already negotiating with two other people for a price above what we paid, we know that from the Hodges," she said. "I also know for a fact that Clint offered them $1.1 million and they turned him down. I don't think the city paid too much. I think we paid a lot for it, but what we paid is only the value of three houses in Carmel, six and a half acres in an area that surely would have been built up just like Mission Fields."

Mission Fields, she stated, is also in the 100-year flood plain, as well as parts of Mission Tract and Mission Ranch.

"So the fact that it is in the 100-year flood plain would not in any way would have prevented it from being developed."

The city had been discussing buying the property since the 1960s.

"We didn't buy it to assure ourselves storm drainage. That is a red herring. We bought this property because this city for over 20 years, has seen the Hodges property as a valuable asset for the city for one reason or another. But primarily underlying all those reasons is for preserving open space," she said.

"I just wish to heck the council had bought the Kinnoull property," she added. "It seems to me, to be fiscally responsible we have to be willing to commit some of your resources for future needs."

The city has averaged the same amount of money on street projects as on debt service for property, she said.

Preservation is another issue that has taken the forefront, and Grace said she appointed a preservation committee to act as a liaison between Carmel Heritage and the planning commission.

"I've never been against (preservation), but I have not seen any way to preserve these places unless we give a motivation to private property owner. First of all, we have to decide what we have, what needs to be saved. I have no doubt we have a lot of little old houses that deserve to have a second look before they're demolished," she said. "I also believe that people who own private property have a right to have a dwelling on it in a residential area that is something they want and need. So the big problem is how do you motivate people to perserve and enhance some of these little old cottages."

That motivation should probably be monetary, she added, perhaps through property tax.

"All that has to be done in conjunction with the county because it is the county that collects the property tax, not the city."

Though she is willing to look at it, a non-voluntary ordinance, Grace said, is not something she favors because it is unfair to curent property owners.

"I don't think it is fair to say to someone 'Well, you own this property and now you can't do anything with it.' I don't think that's fair and I don't think that's right. I do think it is fair to say to them 'We've discovered this is a piece of property the citizens of Carmel would like to see maintained in its present form. Can we help you do that?' And maybe the city of Carmel could help them do that somehow."

One of those is using conservation easements, like the Big Sur Land Trust.

"I would like to see our city planning department discuss with some of the people who know about land trusts what the possibilities are of offering that to property owners of Carmel," she said.

Also important to her, Grace said, is the Monterey Bay Marine Sanctuary, which she believes should extend to Big Sur and include Carmel Bay.

Polling place change noted for Carmel election

THE POLLING place for the April 10th election for voters in Precinct No. 2 has been changed by the election department.

The polling place has been changed from Cherry Hall to Harrison Memorial Library Park Branch, northeast corner of Mission Street and Sixth Avenue.

CARMEL RIVER WATER NEWS

By Henrietta Stern

A fish story

WE HAVE all heard the classic fish story, usually told by a favorite uncle or best buddy, about "the big one that got away." Today's column is about the "the big ones that chose not to come."

Specifically, I am referring to the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's steelhead attraction ladder, which received much media attention. In case you missed out on the action, the purpose of today's column is to discuss the Carmel River steelhead run and its importance. Once your mini-biology lesson is completed, I'll describe the district's fish ladder and why it was constructed.

CARMEL RIVER STEELHEAD

The Carmel River steelhead run has often been described as supporting the southernmost significant wild run of steelhead on the West Coast. The words "significant" and "wild" are important. There are rviers as far south as Malibu where steelhead are found, but not in significant quantities. And there are rivers where hatchery-raised fish are planted, but this is not considered a "wild" population.

The genetic integrity of Carmel River steelhead is important because they may have unique biological characteristics. Water management district biologists have found steelhead living in high temperature, low oxygen Carmel River waters that would be expected to kill the typical steelhead.

On a more emotional basis, the fact that a run is wild, and has perpetuated itself for eons, means a lot to many people. In addition, many fishermen believe a wild steelhead is a better game fish. These values are reflected in state Fish and Game Department policy that sets the protection of wild fish runs as a top priority.

STEELHEAD ARE SALMON, NOT TROUT

Salmon and trout are in the general group known as "salmonids." Steelhead have always been referred to as trout — a sea-run rainbow trout — that behaves like salmon. Recently, the scientific community has reclassified steelhead, and put them in the salmon category. They even gave steelhead a brand new scientific name, Oncorhyncus mykis, which has something to do with its hooked snout. (Maybe you Latin experts can help me out.) So, when I refer to steelhead as salmon in the future, please don't think I've got a biological screw loose!

Steelhead salmon are described as anadromous fish. This means that they are born in fresh water streams, migrate out to sea until they become sexually mature, then return to fresh water to spawn. Adult salmon typically die after they sapwn — steelhead don't! Like all salmon, steelhead are known for their amazing homing ability, where they return to their birth stream by "smelling" the water chemistry of their natal waters.

STEELHEAD LIFE CYCLE

There are wonderful words that biologists use to describe the steelhead life cycle. In winter, sexually mature adults return to Carmel Bay. They find the mouth of the river, and swim upstream to their natal area. Females build nests, called "redds," in well-oxygenated, gravelly areas. She lays her eggs, which are fertilized by the male's "milt." The resultng brood grows from "swim-ups" to "fry" to juveniles. After 1-2 years in the river, physiological changes, called "smoltification," occur, and the "smolt" migrates from the river to the sea, primarily in April and May. Spawned out adults, called "kelts," also migrate at this time. After 2-4 years at sea, the adults return in winter to spawn, thereby completing the cycle.

IMPACTS OF DROUGHT

Given this knowledge, it's easy to understand the serious effects of a multi-year drought on the steelhead population. Smolts can't get out to the ocean and spawners can't find their way back to their birth stream if the Carmel River doesn't flow into the sea. This situation has occurred for three years in a row on the Carmel River.

I might note that serious droughts have occurred in previous centuries. But there weren't many people in those days to divert or pump water from the Carmel River Basin. So even in drought periods, flow would reach the ocean. Thus, it is the presence of all us water users, plus the impacts of several critically dry years, that has led to the present situation. Some biologists and fishermen are concerned that the Carmel River steelhead run may never be a "significant wild run" again.

DISTRICT'S STEELHEAD ATTRACTION LADDER

That's why the Monterey Peninsula water management fishery biologist Dave Dettman proposed a temporary steehlead attraction ladder on Carmel River State Beach. Its purpose was to attract adult steelhead by creating an artificial river. Due to the scarce amount of fresh water available, ocean water in combination with Carmel river lagoon water was pumped down a 130-foot ladder right into the surf. Tank trucks with upstream river water, plus water from the Monterey Bay Aquarium's steelhead exhibit were provided as added incentive.

GENEROUS VOLUNTEERS PITCH IN

Support from the community was wonderful. Special kudos to the Carmel River Steelhead Association, who helped with construction and 24-hour guard duty; the Monterey Peninsula Builder's Exchange, who donated many hours of labor; Hayward Lumber, which donated wood; State Parks and Recreation, which donated a zodiac and rangers; City of Carmel, which donated fire hoses; the aquarium, for the "steelhead water," and numerous individuals who gave their time, materials and energy. Forgive me that I can't name you all.

NO SHOWS

After five days of battling the 6 to 8-foot surf, the ladder was operational. The biggest feat was to get the sea-pumps through the surf, and anchored safely. Sadly, the ladder was operational for only two days before heavy surf damaged the pumps. The fish had four opportunities (4 high tide periods), to climb the ladder, but none showed up. Many observers believe the primary reason is that there were few, if any, fish in Carmel Bay. That does not bode well for the steelhead run.

NOBLE EFFORT

District staff would like to try again next year, armed with the hard-won lessons they have learned. Biologist Dave Dettman emphasized the high risk of failure when he proposed the $14,000 project to the district board, but noted that doing nothing at all carries an even higher risk of losing the steelhead run. Recognizing this fact, the district board agreed to fund the steelhead ladder in addition to its ongoing fish rescue efforts in the Carmel River.

Judging by the warm response from the public on the beach, the community evidently agrees that helping steelhead is a noble effort, regardless of the outcome of this particular project.

Volunteer gardeners sought

The City of Monterey Parks Division is in need of volunteer gardeners to work in city parks. The volunteers are led by Sandra Forman and meet 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays at the French Consulate historic adobe, Franklin Street and Camino El Estero, Monterey. Bring your energy. Tools and materials will be provided. For details, call 646-3860.

Bring own water to Molera Park

Drinking or potable water is no longer available in the Andrew Molera State Park, located on the Big Sur Coast.

In the past, potable water was provided by "water buffalos." The old military metal water tanks on wheels no longer meet state health standards for drinking water and have been removed from the park.

Campers and day users should plan on bringing their own drinking water. Drinking water is available at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park.

For further information, contact the Big Sur District Office at 667-2315.

People are still just people to CV lensman

By DAVID LELAND

ONE OF photographer Tom Gundelfinger O'Neal's fondest memories of his life in Los Angeles is that of waiting until nightfall and driving down Sunset Boulevard so he could see his album covers splashed on the billboards.

The time marked a period where fate, self-will and years of hard work paid off.

"I've always been interested in art; I was the guy in high school that they picked to do the prom poster," says O'Neal, 48, who owns TGO Photography in Carmel Valley Village. "The visual thing has always been there."

Indeed, the "visual thing" has served O'Neal quite nicely during the past 20 years, and has garnered him a fistful of gold records for his work in getting on film more than 100 stellar musical groups, including such heavyweights as the Rolling Stones.

Although the Carmel Valley family man now spends the majority of his time photographing weddings and creating commercial designs, it wasn't long ago that he stood dead in the center of the rock 'n' roll madness of the late '60s and early '70s in Los Angeles.

"When I think back on the period I remember the heat, the smog and the glitz," says O'Neal, referring to his former fast-paced lifestyle. "It was great; it was exciting."

Well sure it was.

How many can boast a close relationship with groups such as Steppenwolf, Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young, Jimi Hendrix, B.B. King, Canned Heat and The Mamas and Papas?

His Matthew Brady-style, black and white photograph which graced the cover of CSN&Y's platinum Deja Vu album can also be seen on the inside cover of David Crosby's recently released biography Long Time Gone.

Back then O'Neal used the name of Tom Gundelfinger, but adopted his wife Mollie's name shortly after they were married.

"My name was the subject of a lot of ridicule," says O'Neal, referring to his childhood growing up in Beverely Hills. "It got to be a drag."

No stranger to the world of celebrities, as a boy O'Neal delivered newspapers to neighbors such as Jack Benny, Rosemary Clooney and Jimmy Stewart when he wasn't attending Harvard Military School.

One of his boyhood friends, Barry Diller, now serves as head of 20th Century Fox, and awarded O'Neal the job of designing the logo for Saturday Night at the Movies several years ago.

O'NEAL'S artistic endeavors began with painting and drawing and continued during his studies at the Art Institute of Chicago and University of Illinois before photography won out.

It was during that period that O'Neal studied color theory with Stanley Tigerman, whom he credits as being the most influential person in his artistic life.

"The environment of color indicates how you will see the colors you are looking at," explains O'Neal, referring to various backdrops utilized in photography. "In photography you view colors in so many different ways."

O'Neal utilized that theory on Steppenwolf's first album, which featured the hits The Pusher and Born To Be Wild, by printing the group's picture on silver foil — a first at the time.

Rock group Cream later used O'Neal's technique on its album Wheels of Fire.

But let's not get ahead of the story — cut to Carmel in 1965 and O'Neal is closely examining the newest Mamas and Papas album in a local record store located near the Village Corner restaurant.

"I looked at it and said 'I can do this,' " says O'Neal. "At that moment I told myself I was going to do album covers."

Here's where the wheels of fate begin to turn.

O'Neal somehow intuitively knew that the Monterey Pop Festival would become a landmark in rock 'n' roll history.

'It can be just as exciting up here. It's just that the people you work with aren't known all over the world.'

With that in mind, he cornered Mamas and Papas' producer Lou Adler when he came to Monterey prior to the festival and managed to secure passes to the event.

Having met the manager for the Byrds, O'Neal took roll after roll of film of the group during the festival, while still managing to snap pictures of Hendrix, the Who and other acts who performed that weekend.

He sent the pictures down to L.A. and waited for a response.

"That was it," says O'Neal. "The next thing I knew I was working on a Byrds album cover."

O'Neal also developed a friendship with Crosby, who played in the Byrds before CSN&Y.

One day O'Neal received a call from Crosby to come and take pictures of his latest girlfriend and perhaps he'd have time to listen to her music.

"Joni Mitchell sat on the floor and played her first album," remembers O'Neal. "I knew she'd be a giant."

SOMEHOW O'NEAL remained unscathed by the rampant drug and alcohol use that permeated that era, though he watched many of his subjects lose the same battle.

"My work represented psychedelia, but I was not what you would call a druggie," says O'Neal, who has two sons Dugan, 7, and Casey, 4. "I never got stoned on a photo session. It was always pushed on me, but I knew I'd lose it."

He also tried to discourage his subjects from partaking in substances, sometimes to no avail.

O'Neal remembers one time when blues group Canned Heat showed up for a sitting stoned on mescaline. Says O'Neal, "It was like trying to handle a bunch of preschoolers."

Word soon spread that O'Neal was one of five or so top shooters at the forefront of the industry.

Rolling Stones lead singer Mick Jagger interviewed O'Neal with an opportunity to photograph the Stones' album Exile on Main Street.

"I expected to meet a flamboyant wild man," says O'Neal, who missed portraying the album cover but spent two or three months capturing the Stones in concert. "Instead, I found him cordial, articulate and businesslike. The reason the Rolling Stones are so successful is because Mick Jagger is such a good businessman."

'I've always been interested in art; I was the guy in high school that they picked to do the prom poster. The visual thing has always been there.'
— Tom O'Neal

Even with all his financial success and ego gratification, O'Neal felt compelled to leave Los Angeles during the mid-'70s.

"I left because the spark was coming out of the music," he says. "The honesty was starting to come out of the lyrics."

Gone were such stalwarts as the Flying Burrito Brothers and Buffalo Springfield. Other luminaries had died from drug overdoses or become buried in the world of gigantic egos.

O'Neal moved to Idaho to regain his composure.

"I realized I could live without being in Los Angeles," he says. "It was hard; I had withdrawals."

From there he spent time in Big Sur and abroad, taking pictures for the U.S. Embassy and Peace Corps.

He returned permanently to the peninsula in 1979 and set up Admakers advertising and public relations agency. He married Mollie O'Neal, daughter of cartoonist Frank O'Neal, in 1981.

With Mollie assisting in the business, O'Neal says he couldn't ask for more.

"I'm busy, but comfortable," he says. "I'm in love with my life — I'm a lucky guy."

O'Neal scoffs at the idea that the peninsula doesn't offer the same creative outlet as the Southland.

"It can be just as exciting up here," he says. "It's just that the people you work with aren't known all over the world."

After all, people are people to O'Neal.

"Instead of photographing rock groups I photograph families," says O'Neal of his wedding portraits. "I photograph the beginning of the family, the wedding. I'm still photographing people — if they're not making music, they're still making life."

as if they were running against the Carmel Residents Association, an organization he casts as draconian in motive and mean in spirit.

When Howard participated with me and other citizens in originally forming the CRA to help preserve the residential character of Carmel, which he and others saw as threatened by the hysteria surrounding the early Eastwood mayoralty, his views as expressed then certainly were not in tune with the character of his recent articles.

My own experience is that the CRA, since its inception, has grown strong, interesting, open-minded and effective. The devotion of its members to the CRA (and the city's) charter promoting preservation of the town's residential character has not changed. My conclusion is that it is Howard who has changed and I am sorry to see it.

Currently, I serve as co-chairman of the Hatton Canyon Coalition. Its purpose of seeking an acceptable solution to our local traffic problems other than the current Caltrans megastructure freeway design is steadfastly supported by three candidates in this election: Grace, Fischer and Brooks. This, among many other things, demonstrates, to me, their devotion to the best interests of preserving the priceless character of our area.

The campaign on behalf of the other two candidates, which apparently attempts to confuse the voters, on the one hand, into thinking they are supported by the CRA (or parts thereof), and, at the same time, to denigrate the importance of the support of the CRA for Grace, Fischer and Brooks (unfairly, I believe), does not impress me.

Clearly, in this election, Grace, Fischer and Brooks deserve the votes of Carmel residents.

Duly registered

Dear Editor:

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Resident's Association was organized specifically to provide a forum for people, who legally reside within the city limits and are opposed to any form of annexation. The correct name of the village, including the phrase, "By The Sea," was used to distinguish the membership from other organizations which, in years past, have used the name "Carmel" in their title but did not share similar membership restrictions.

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Residents Association Committee is a political Recipient Committee duly registered with the Secretary of State Political Reform Division, Monterey County Elections Department and Carmel-by-the-Sea City Clerk's Office. The committee carefully ckecked with the Political Reform Division of the Secretary of State's office that there was no similarly named recipient committee on file.

Changed view

Dear Editor:

In my last letter published in the Pine Cone about two years ago I suggested Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo should be a candidate for mayor against Jean Grace. Mrs. Laiolo chose not to run at that time.

Since then I have changed by view about Mrs. Laiolo because of what I feel has been her unreasonableness and council votes on a number of issues related to development and growth.

Mrs. Laiolo would sell city park land carefully built up by city council after council over many years for keeping the natural charm of Carmel which is important to our commercial style as development takes place in the county around us.

As just one example, Mrs. Laiolo is the foremost proponent to sell off the best view portion of the Mission Trail Park for new developments next door to the arboretum

Similarly, Mrs. Laiolo has argued for and cast many, many council votes oriented toward encouraging overdevelopment at too-fast a pace. The other council members outvoted her and have been more reasonable in respecting the traditions which have made the business district successful.

My feeling is that Mrs. Laiolo would do all she could to encourage expansion of the Mission Ranch into a hotel larger than its recently proposed expansion, which I feel is not very appealing to the neighborhoods on the south side of town with more traffic and all.

Those of us who depend for our retirement on the success of a modest downtown business do not want Carmel to lose its charm through thoughtless development as done in nearly all other cities along the California coast.

True colors

Dear Editor:

Its disappointing to read the bitterness expressed by a small group of CRA supporters who personally attack Howard Nieman Jr. for expressing his views on the dangers of CRA control of our city council and for his endorsement of council candidate Carla Ramsey. These people have certainly shown their true colors at last!

From my perspective, Mr. Nieman's signing of Carla Ramsey's nomination papers indicates his continued recognition of her qualifications as a candidate. His support of Carla in no way diminishes the accuracy nor facts brought out in his series of editorials.

My second point is that Carla Ramsey is an outstanding candidate who deserves our support.

Carla is the ONLY candidate running who has experience on the Carmel Planning Commission.

Carla is the only candidate running who hasn't worked only for government. She understands hard work and the value of our tax dollars.

Carla is a leader and has proven her qualifications and integrity serving four years on the planning commission.

In fact, CRA's endorsement of Barbara Brooks and Bob Fischer make Carla the only independent candidate in the field. Join me in supporting her and an independent city council.

True statement

Dear Editor:

On the brochure that Barbara Brooks is handing out door to door — and, by the way, she seems to be the only candidate taking the time to do this — says:

"Barbara Brooks' effectiveness is based on extensive knowledge of the issues and her fairness in dealing with people representing diverse interests."

A true statement indeed. What interests could be more diverse than the Carmel Board of Realtors, the Carmel Residents Association and the Sierra Club — and they have all endorsed her. They are all saying that they would like to see her elected to the city council because she knows what's going on and she's fair.

Winning team

Dear Editor:

Election time seems to be a time for unfair untrue statements. Some, downright lies.

We will all be grateful to be rid of the many confused editorials, sent by a gentleman obviously distruntled. He started with the group, took himself off to pout when outvoted. He could have remained, voted, contributed, and made many good friends, as we have. We belong to both neighborhood groups, and find them full of wonderful people, just trying to keep our lovely village a great place to live.

Every one of you are invited to come, join in with your vote, to either group. The more the merrier. We welcome your input. We are trying to keep our finger in the dike — hold back the flood of developers. Keep our trees, find parking solutions.

We, the people, have chosen Jean Grace and our council to make sound decisions. And they are doing just that. We have the best informed speakers we can find to help us protect our lovely village.

Mr. Nieman does not even come to any of our open forums to learn what contributions we the people make. To learn from our speakers. Rest your case, Mr. Nieman.

We personally, know five old-timers — 50 years or more Carmel residents. Each of them are grateful for our active neighbors groups, and only wish Carmel had formed such groups long ago. They are all very active within these groups. Each has stated Carmel should have bought more property long ago.

How beautiful, our new Torres Park! I wonder if Mrs. Laiolo would have voted to purchase Sunset Center?

The Hodges Property will be a great buffer, along the Carmel River. The developers will be building many houses soon across the river. The Carmel Mission will be protected along the south side.

It is a lovely piece of land. It is not a wet land. Dry as a bone, and unless the Carmel River overflows its banks (a 100-year prediction), it will serve as a park, buffer zone, parking, city buildings, you name it, it is ours, and not 100 more houses.

Less than 3 percent of the $1.75 million paid for it comes from our taxes; 70 percent from our business revenue, and the rest from the state — so relax folks, it's a great buy!

If it ain't broke, don't fix it! We have an intelligent hard-working mayor doing a darn good job. Bob Fischer is right on. Barbara Brooks is interested in all the values we hold dear — open space, parking, property values, city taxes, trees with the time and energy to add to the council She won't need to excuse herself for conflicting interests.

Disturbing trend

Dear Editor:

There is a disturbing trend taking place in this election which concerns all Carmel residents and voters. Some of our candidates seeking public office are either deliberately lying to us to gain a vote or they are so confused about the positions and the issues affecting Carmel that they don't know what positions they favor.

The ideal small town election is a contest based on issues between friends who can go and share a cup of coffee at the conclusion of an honorable struggle for the leadership of our community.

There is nothing honorable in attacking the city staff which serves at the will of the council. Howard Nieman Jr., representing Carla Ramsey, has consistently attacked the people who do the work of this city implying that "staff" runs the city. It is irresponsible and immature behavior to attempt to make individuals who work for a city part of the election issues. There is no honor in using city workers to gain your own political objectives. A good staff serves the will and the direction of the city council. Our city has an excellent staff that gets things done. Let's try to treat them with the respect they deserve.

In other editorials Mr. Nieman has done his best to slander the local residents organization by using every tactic Joe McCarthy used. Guilt by association, innuendo, references to the consolidation of enormous power, threats of behind the scenes manipulation...nonsense, just Howard's fantasies.

The CRA is not a power group. It, barely, is a political organization. It is a service-oriented group of residents who would like to see less emphasis on commercial interests and more emphasis on making Carmel a "liveable" city for residents, visitors, and the business community.

I am a member of the CRA board of directors and I am proud to call friends people like Ben Heller, Jane Mayer, Jim Holliday, Clayton Anderson, Linda Anderson, Beth Wright, Jim Wright, and Ken White. These are individuals of integrity and conviction, independent and outspoken, hardly pawns of the CRA. There was a time when Howard Nieman was part of our goals, our concerns, and our vitality. I believe he no longer represents the best interests of Carmel. Howard represents himself and a narrow perspective of Carmel.

Some additional examples of "confusion" among our local candidates: Carla Ramsey in her political pamphlet says "I say yes to historic preservation." Here is a quote from Mrs. Ramsey in a discussion of historic preservation: "I don't think that it's this commission's right or any committee's right to be getting into this realm of property ownership. And I'm totally not in favor of any of this." (Carmel Planning Commission, Dec. 20. 1989.)

Normally I have great respect for Elinor Laiolo and her stands on community positions. For years she was adamantly opposed to the Beach Bluff Walkway and so stated her position. Now she claims she did not oppose it. Elinor's documented opposition to the project is a matter of record. Now she is claiming that she really didn't oppose the project but had concerns about the engineering aspects of the project. She spoke before the Coastal Conservancy with one goal, to kill a project that had been approved by a 4 to 1 vote by her city council. Had she convinced the people dispensing the money we would have lost $200,000 in grant monies. It was an arrogant and foolish attempt to impose her values on the city council and the residents of Carmel. (March 19, 1987.)

Mrs. Laiolo also is attacking her opponent for trying to push annexation down the throats of the people of Carmel. On April 4, 1989 the city council adopted a resolution which stated: "It is the policy of the City Council of Carmel-by-the-Sea to not initiate annexations..." It passed unaminously. There is no issue here, except the "some confusion" from the Elinor Laiolo campaign.

I will not vote for any candidate who has deliberately attempted to deceive the public on issues in order to gain votes. It is wrong, unethical, and a violation of campaign practice to allow or partake in such election behavior. If any candidate has done so they have, in my opinion, given up their right to sit in public office.

A lie is a lie, whether in politics, in business, or in human relationships. This is an ethic we owe to ourselves. Let's live up to it.

three other members of the city council.

The expenditure of $1.75 million to preserve this magnificent 6 1/2 acres of scenic open space as a part of Carmel is commendable.

Compare this to the recent sale of a house in a 50-foot lot on Casanova and 12th for over 1 million, and the house next door priced at $815,000, plus the sale of a shack on a 40-foot lot three doors away sold for over $500,000, makes the Hodges property a real bargain.

Anyone who has recently visited the Laguna Beach area should applaud the preservation of the Hodges acreage. The last ocean-front vista of the Irvine Ranch property is being heavily developed and in Laguna itself every foot of property is built to the limit and the traffic and crowded beach and streets is unreal. Carmel must try to preserve what open space that is left.

It is incorrect to say that Mayor Grace is "pursuing annexation."

As chairman of the Ad Hoc Annexation Study Committee, which completed its study in October 1988, I can verify that our charge was solely to study the potential impact in the event some area chose to annex to the city.

I quote from our conclusions, "We want to stress that we have recognized the neutral position of the city council. We have not in the past nor do we now express a position in support of or in opposition to annexation."

Following our study the city council "unanimously put to rest any further consideration of annexation."

Even though I am a Republican, I object to the Republican Women's Club making telephone calls urging support of one of the candidates in this non-partisan race for mayor.

Richard N. Little

Mayor for all

Dear Editor:

Again city elections are almost here. In a city the size of Carmel, people can get to know something about the candidates — or even know them.

I am for Mayor Grace this time — Councilwoman Laiolo lost me four years ago when she was a guest on television station Channel 46. She said she was against the valuable lots on Dolores and Fifth being used for senior housing for the elderly poor — in fact I remember that she said that the elderly poor should not live in Carmel — I gasped — but remembered.

After the election the Carmel Foundation took over the housing for the elderly and Mayor Eastwood joined with the foundation, a great deal of the opposition to the apartments faded — and now we have the lovely apartments on Dolores and Fifth.

I wouldn't be surprised if Councilwoman Laiolo changed openly too — however she was originally against the elderly poor ever living in Carmel.

I know there is opposition to the city buying the property on the banks of our dry river, Carmel River. If the property is developed into houses and motels, traffic will become much heavier. Yes people are talking about doing something about the traffic. They have been doing that for 22 years or more.

If it is developed into a park — may I suggest that signs be made saying that water will be turned on every two hours — that will save a lot of trouble.

May I add, if anyone is going to be mayor for all the people, they must be for the elderly poor too.

Eleanor Colbourn

A different story

Dear Editor:

Councilman Jim Wright should not dwell on what might have been said, but rather on what actually has been done. He would find that many of the proposals made by the General Plan Review Committee transferred certain items of the 1984 General Plan to other sections of the present revised General Plan.

Paragraph Pl-22 of the 1984 plan has been restated in the current General Plan Paragraph 01-18 along with backup paragraphs 01-15, Pl-13, Pl-24, Pl-27, Pl-50, Pl-51, and Pl-57. These are much more definitive. The later General Plan replaced the words "design review" with "appropriate zoning ordinances," although design review is specifically mentioned again in paragraphs Pl-50, Pl-51, and Pl-57.

Previous to 1985 houses could be constructed up to 2,600 square feet in area, and only went to design review if they were two stories. In 1985 the allowable area for a 4,000-foot lot was reduced to 1,800 square feet including a garage.

The planning commission started working on a new ordinance four years ago and after much bureaucracy sent a report and proposal for an R-1 ordinance, as instructed in the General Plan, to your council 10 months ago, June 1989. To date final action has not taken place.

At the start of the Eastwood administration the planning commission initiated an ordinance covering the commercial district which greatly restricted building in that area.

They also initiated design review for all buildings in the R-1 area. The design review committee had been terminated by the previous administration. It has now been established as a standing committee for review preceeding presentation to the entire commission.

It is hoped the council will eventually pass a zoning ordinance for the R-1 area, as instructed in paragraph 01-18 of the General Plan, so that the planning commission will have something to work with other than the Townsend Administration ordinance. They have been struggling with that ordinance for the past four years.

Citywide organization

Dear Editor:

Despite the length of his several guest editorials, one is left to wonder why Howard Nieman attacks the Carmel Residents Association.

The CRA is interested in maintaining Carmel as a primarily residential community — as specified in Carmel's ordinances — by protecting its trees, parks, beach and trails; by promoting resident-oriented businesses; by reducing the impact of tourist-oriented commercial activities on the residents and by otherwise maintaining Carmel's unique quality of life for all residents. The CRA is naturally interested in supporting candidates for public office who will be most effective in city government and who will help residents accomplish these goals.

There is much that goes on in city government between elections that requires analysis, monitoring and citizen input and the CRA exists for that purpose. It is the only citywide residents' organization in Carmel. It would seem that most residents would support the CRA, unless they had interests which were incompatible with the goals and objectives of the CRA.

Overstaying welcome

Dear Editor:

Your long-playing guest editorialist, like the well-known man who came to dinner, has overstayed his welcome.

We grow weary of his single-issue, intemperate diatribes directed against the residents of Carmel. Disraeli's words, in regard to Gladstone, would seem to apply: "The sophistical gentleman is inebriated by the eloquence of his own verbosity."

Carmelites, residential majority, remember to vote, on April 10th, for a bright, well-balanced candidate for council, and one with no conflicts of interest.

Anne Woolworth

Deserving of votes

Dear Editor:

Those of us who are proudly supporting Mayor Jean Grace, Councilman Bob Fischer, and council candidate Barbara Brooks for election on April 10 decry negative campaigning. We are supporting candidates with positive programs and they are thoroughly deserving of the votes of the electorate of Carmel.

Each of these competent, informed, dedicated candidates has made the interests of the residents of Carmel the keystone of their campaigns. About this they have no conflict of interests. Each is for preservation and protection of open space, integrity of the urban forest, effective design review to prevent the building of unsightly, large homes; an environmentally sound solution to the proposed Highway 1 freeway, and enhancement of Carmel's cultural program.

It has been said that the most important office in a democratic society is that of "citizen." We residents of Carmel can fulfill the most important function of our office by our votes for good government. Accordingly, we should affirm this function clearly on April 10 by voting in large numbers for Jean Grace, Bob Fischer, and Barbara Brooks.

Ben I. Heller M.D.

Grace, Fischer, Brooks

Dear Editor:

Which candidates can best protect the environment we are privileged to enjoy in Carmel? Which candidates will best support and uphold our ordinances and General Plan?

The decision is not easy, since all candidates claim to honor these objectives. We must look beyond their words and evaluate their records and deeds — then it becomes easier.

Through the years, Jean Grace's record of devoted service on a multitude of commissions, boards and committees has been equalled by few if any citizens of Carmel. She was and remains an ardent supporter of the beach walkway. She believes in acquiring and preserving precious open space and voted to protect trees in Carmel.

Council member Laiolo voted against Mayor Grace and the other council members on each of these issues. On the contentious problem of Caltrans' proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway, Mrs. Laiolo has avoided making known her position, while Mayor Grace and the rest of the council have endorsed the widening of Highway 1 as the most cost-effective and least environmentally damaging alternative. Mayor Grace has earned and deserves another term.

Bob Fischer is an independent thinker who is always willing to listen to constituents and carefully evaluates information presented to the council. He favors smaller houses and a larger percentage of open space on building sites. In addition, Councilman Fischer was fully in support of the acquisition of the Hodges and Handley properties. He is the only candidate who has broached the subject of a day care center — this is something which should be investigated. By supporting cultural and recreational programs, Bob Fischer has proven his commitment to the enhancement of life in Carmel. We urge his re-election.

Barbara Brooks has demonstrated her concern for this village and her support for the preservation of Carmel values. She has attended and testified at countless city council and planning commission meetings and has been a responsible member of numerous city committees and civic organizations. She has made her stand well known on preventing massive, inappropriate houses, protecting the forest and retaining open space.

Barbara has provided strong leadership in the Carmel Residents Association and during her presidency many community-wide programs were initiated, such as the Citizen of the Year celebration, Leon Panetta Day and the beach-flower walk and picnic. She is the only candidate endorsed by such diverse groups as the Carmel Board of Realtors and the Sierra Club. In addition, three members of the current city council have endorsed her candidacy.

We urge you to vote, on April, 10, for Jean Grace, Bob Fischer, and Barbara Brooks.

Our best hope

Dear Editor:

We Carmelites had better watch out — what is happening to our town and our image? Did you see March 29th Monterey Herald?

On page 23 an article begins with a person testifying at the Pacific Grove general plan hearing saying, "I don't want to see Pacific Grove end up like Carmel."

And on page 27 Joe Fitzpatrick has a wonderful time with Harold Gilliam's article about the planning commisssion taking Carmel downhill.

Wake up, folks, this is serious! I've lived here since 1946 and Carmel is definitely changing — and I can't say it's for the better.

There is one candidate running who I think will try to protect what we still have left and slow down the huge houses. That is Barbara Brooks, and I hope all of you will vote for her on April 10.

Utter hogwash

Dear Editor:

Howard Nieman Jr.'s latest "Guest Editorial" is too much.

As I understand Mr. Nieman, anyone associated with the Carmel Residents Association (the CRA) is biased, bigoted, inexperienced and unqualified for service to Carmel.

Utter hogwash. Mayor Grace and Councilmen Fischer, White and Wright are decent honorable people. They listen patiently to all arguments on each issue and base their votes on their best judgment. They have all been supported by the CRA. To imply that that endorsement makes them unworthy is a "guilt by association" tactic Joseph McCarthy would have applauded. Similarly, Mrs. Brooks is honest and forthright. To vote against her simply because she is endorsed by the CRA is totally wrong.

None of these people are pawns or dupes of anyone. To imply that they are is a low, vile tactic that demeans the people saying it.

Read the candidates' statements. Listen to their ideas and read and check their platform. And don't let "Guest Editorial" vitriol (or letters to the editor), sway you. Only the candidates themselves merit and earn your vote. Vote on their words, not someone elses. (I am not a member of the CRA.)

Doubtless a memento

Dear Editor:

Apropos Murphy house/Enid Sales: Man can live without architecture but cannot remember without architecture. (Ruskin?) But more than that: cannot remember without preservation of that architecture.

Evidence lies in the disagreement among scholars about characteristics of the Colossus of Rhodes, one characteristic being its erstwhile existence. Yes, keep the Murphy — no Monticello but doubtless a memento.

sidered arbitary or capricious.

"I think we need to look at 50 percent landscapable open space from that point of view. And if that is impinging on the ability of the owner to realize the economic viability of the property, that could be a problem. I wouldn't want to see the city caught in that kind of a bind," she said.

There are other concerns to that tactic, she said.

"The other thing is that if that were in place as a zoning requirement, think of the number of non-conforming buildings there would be while one who remodels their building is not permitted to increase their non-conformity," Laiolo said. "Is it appropriate for a government to say we are going to make all these things non-conforming?"

A big part of the problem, she said, is that it begins to include such things as decks and patios in 50-percent coverage, "or, turning it around, intruding into 50-percent open space whereas now, some of that is included in some of the coverage."

She added "that many of those that are discussing this are already enjoying those privileges. And many members of public that come and comment on these issues are enjoying the luxury of those things. So I really have to ask myself is it right to regulate those out of existence? I believe there are other ways of controlling it.

"I recognize the need for certain guidelines, and certain limitations on how close buildings can be be, perhaps height limitation perhaps even coverage, land coverage. I think some aspects can be better handled through a guideline process. In day-to-day living, it is hard to set out specific patterns you are going to follow, set out what is best for people to follow," she pointed out.

Listening to the people who live and work in the city should be a part of that process, she said.

Laiolo was the lone vote on the council against the purchase of the Hodges property. Then and now, Laiolo has maintained that the six and a half acres were acquired at too high a price, $1.7 million, and without sufficient public input.

"Purchases of land or real estate over a certain percentage of the budget should go to a public vote," she maintains.

The city bought the property for $200,000 more than its assessed value.

She also objects to the fact that the property is in the flood plain and the city had no use in mind when it bought the land.

One of the problems with the purchase of Hodges, she said, is that the council did not get the appraisal and enough information on the purchase before it made its decision. That has happened on other issues.

Fixing the city streets is a priority for Laiolo.

"All the dollars that come into the city's treasury are public funds. They should be used to the benefit of the public by providing services which affect the daily lives of those who live and work in our city. A one-block walk or ride on any of our streets will tell you that our streets are in a sad state of disrepair and could be considered unsafe for pedestrians and vehicular traffic, placing the city in a position of liability," she states.

Black and white

WHAT PEOPLE wear when they go out and what they plan to wear in the future is of interest always.

Hostesses of the 21st Annual Victorian Home Tour April 22 will wear dresses denoting the period in which these charming Pacific Grove homes were built. In order to make a full weekend of it the PG Good Old Days will include a woodshaft golf tournament, arts and crafts faire, a parade, a quilt show, and the only Police Motorcycle Officers Riding Competition in the world (so says the PG Chamber).

The counterpoint of black and white have been part of spring fashions for eons and so it is again the first year of the 1990s. One portion of the open air fashion show in the Barnyard gardens featured the combination and the "First Annual Black and White Checkered Flag Ball" last Friday reaffirmed the popularity of these contrasting colors.

"Puttin' On the Ritz'" planned by the MP Museum of Art for May 12 comes in the form of a "Black and White Ball" at the Sheraton. No, it is not a copy of the one in San Fran, but rather the inspiration came from the museum exhibit "Monterey Collects: Black and White." It promises big band dance music and a superb dinner. So, save that date!

The dress code for the "Bud Allen Hookers Ball" read "use your imagination" — adding in bold letters, "Adults Only."

Black and white was all right as long as it was ultra tight and ultra short (or shorter). Feathers, wigs, black net hosiery, bright reds and glitter on everything from faded blue jeans to all the places the imagination could explore.

In golf garb Bob Infelise brought his golf club to indicate he "hooks" on the course. There were a couple of "flashers" (poised and ready to flash), a few in tuxes (one told me he decided to come as a customer), and school officials. After all, this was given as a benefit by Friends of Carmel Unified Schools (FOCUS).

Hookers, johns, and squares were treated to delicious international hot buffet tables at Rancho Canada. Japanese, Mexican and American favorites. However, there wasn't much talking (whether small or deep), the music was so loud that it made communicating impossible except on the dance floor.

Those wild imaginative costumes made judging for awards a difficult task. A job that Don and Lynn Geisen (and associates), labored over until they came forth with the following winners:

"Longest Legs" — (gorgeous) Turi Norlind

"Best Front" — Bernice Anello. To show they see both sides judges gave "Best Back" to Shay Davidson.

"Tess & Dick Tracy Award" — Nancy and Merv Sutton.

"Best Humphrey Bogart" — (teacher) Pat Stadelli.

"Best Spandex" — Christy Katola

"Ladies Choice" — (handsome) Skip Frietas and "Fish Called Wanda" (pretty) Susie Faia.

"Miss Kitty & Matt Dillon Award" — Donna and Lupe Alonzo.

"Best Hooker Award" went to Patty Cox in her (brief) Easter Bunny costume complete with her Easter Basket of naughty items.

The hard-working committee, Lynn Bohnen, Phyllis Lewis, Shim LaGoy, Merv Sutton and Pat Yates, hooked onto $3,800 at the auction and add to that a couple of thou more. All for the kiddies of the Carmel school district.

"The Hookers Ball" proves that Carmelites and people from its environs do not always prefer being an audience. They also like to be "the show itself."

When you see three ladies in the same outfit walking into a formal occasion at The Sheraton you think something is up. Later, they joked saying, "it was planned," or, "we are going to sing New York, New York later."

Janice Russo, Diane Duffey and Barbara Erenpreise each looked gorgeous in identical white and black eveningwear. Very appropriate. After all, it was "The Black and White Checkered Flag Ball" given by Soroptimist of Carmel Bay and SCRAMP (Sports Car Racing Association of MP), to benefit the Monterey Rape Crisis Center.

Most of the 164 guests came in sophisticated black and white. It was such a chi-chi affair that even the lady's lounge was decorated with B/W balloons floating above a red and black traffic cone, the same decorations that were used on the ballroom tables. It was all black-and-white right down to the B/W checkered dance floor donated by the Hyatt Regency.

Along with racing flags, balloons and streamers, shiny race cars and motorcycles sparked up the evening that announced the 1990 Raceway Queen. The four finalists attending the ball were Denise Blanco, Yvette Dalton, Ana Orozco and Angela Stellato.

Only the first runner-up, Yvette Dalton, was announced before Angela Stellato was crowned "Laguna Seca Raceway Queen" for 1990. Angela received a $1,000 scholarship, a free course at Elizabeth Modeling School and a chance to become Miss USA.

The queen selection was made by a panel of representatives of the city and county of Monterey, the boards of SCRAMP and Soroptimist. This event is the first of what promises to be an annual event to introduce the season of sports car racing, which begins this weekend.

SCRAMP and Soroptimist International are both non-profit organizations which like to raise $$$ for charities and this first time effort will bring around $4,000 to the Rape Crisis Center.

The dinner menu first course "At the Starting Line" was linguini in B/W (natch), followed by "The Race Is On" and "The Winner's Bouquet" salad. The "Winner's Circle" dessert ended the meal with dark chocolate and vanilla cake.

You may dress as you please for an informal outdoor fashion show. Chairs were set up in the flower gardens of Carmel's The Barnyard and shoppers sat in the sun, nibbled hors d'oeuvres, enjoyed seeing styles from casual-to-dressy in action on professional models and jotted down where to shop.

Dotty Murphy, in B/W nautical look from Changes put together "Fashion Magic" from 10 Barnyard emporiums and did a running commentary. A few fashion tidbits gleaned: spice is a hot new color (alone, or combined with other hues); periwinkle is also big; chiffon skirts are new and combined with a variety of materials never allowed near this sheer, feminine fabric before.

Leathers are softer and more colorfully inviting than ever and black and white has it yearly spring update. The nautical look is nice this season and back in the fashion picture are "skorts" (divided skirts) and, believe-it-or-not, so are charm bracelets. So head for that old box of jewelry and dig them out.

The best way to catch up on spring styles is to walk through The Barnyard gardens from shop to shop and see for yourself.

Plans have been made for the 53rd season of the Carmel Bach Festival. If you turn that number around you have the number of years that Maestro Sandor Salgo has been musical director and conductor.

Friday evening a preview party was held in the Church of The Wayfarer where a variety of finger foods were served with wines from Chalone, the official Bach Festival vintner. Vicky Hamilton attended as a representative of the winery.

Bach Association president Dr. Basil Allaire introduced "the heart and soul of the Bach Festival," Maestro Salgo, who gave a preview of the coming season.

Opening Night offers the six Brandenburg Concerti; Tuesday "Les Elemens" (a ballet for the French opera); Wednesday, a return to "The Golden Age of Venice"; Thursday, "Soloists Night" which includes Brahms. (yes, Brahms at a Bach Festival). The Friday concert features four violins and four harpsichords and on Saturday an opera they haven't done in 25 years L'Orfeo with sets designed by Gail Factor.

Bach did not compose for the modern instruments that are now in use, but he did have what is referred to as "ancient" ones. Dr. Herb Meyer of Stanford brought a display of ancient instruments and gave a short history of the transition of these instruments into modern ones.

The preview was attended by more than 100 festival ticket holders and fans for the season that runs for three full weeks, July 16 through Aug. 5.

Action!

THIS HAS been an exciting week! The Pinto division, which grew this year to nine teams, had a full schedule of seven games. (The entire league has seen expansion, with over 100 new players.) Come down to Larson Field and catch some of the fun!

PINTO: The March 26 game between Carmel Bay Co. and Fourtane's Jewelry featured achievements by first-year players Meghan and Brittani Parks (both doubled), and Christopher Canepa (tripled in his first at-bat); teammate Philip Borup smashed a line drive to deep right field. Driving in runs with doubles for CBC were Taylor Schmitz (who was also hot at first base), and Jeff Stutzman. Catching difficult fly balls were Canepa and CBC's Derek Shue; Tommy George (F) exhibited "heads up" base-running.

JJ's and Mediterranean Market played an exciting game March 27. MM's Michael Gasperson hit two line drives, Sarah Pinsky had three base hits, and teammates Ryan Eldridge and Joey Carr were responsible for several great plays at first. For JJ's, David Blagg doubled; Carl Weiner hit well and drove in a run; Pat Warren and Sabian Ford showed good gloves in the field.

Hitting doubles in the March 28, Brown Spaulding and Gepetto's match were Aaron Campbell (BS, ground-rule), and Jeff McGowan (G). Fielding achievements included Robby Wellington at rover and Matthew England at shortstop for BS; G's Justin Brennan at first and rover and outfielder Zarosh Eggleston.

Valley Auto and Pinto Power provided action March 29 with solid hits and good fielding. VA's Patrick Callahan was 2-for-2 with 2 RBI; PP's Brett Pallastrini ripped a hit down the third base line. Olivier Griss (VA) and Jared Mast (PP) contributed deep line drives. PP's Joey Goldman was tough at rover, Brent Fogg turned an unassisted double play and Corey Wood made a spectacular fly ball catch off the glove of another fielder; also strong defensively were VA's Chris Foudy, Adam Corder, Caleb Bayless and Lee Lightfoot.

The Bullets and Fourtane's faced off on March 31. Extra-base hits were nailed by B's Meghan Heally, Justin Wachs, Bob Stoddard and Rayde Lorimer (2-run triple), and F's Philip Borup. Glove honors go to first-year player Joseph Goldman, Michael Horsley, Chris Canepa and Borup (all F); Wachs and Stoddard.

In the Carmel Bay Co./Brown Spaulding game March 31, top BS hitters were Tasha Roos, Jacob Hendrix and Ben Borofka. Ian Cooney, Jeff Stutzman and Joey Sells swung hot bats for CBC. Exhibiting fielding skills were Josh Fishbach (BS), Cooney, Taylor Schmitz, Derek Shue and Travis Moran (CBC).

It was home run time when Pinto Power met Gepetto's March 31 — Justin Brennen (G) and Joey Goldman (PP) knocked 'em out of the park! Corey Wood (PP) hit a ground-rule double; G's Whitney Emerson and Kathy Keeble had two hits each. Great fielding came from Joey Goldman, Corey Wood and Brent Fogg (PP); Zarosh Eggleston and Justin Travaille (G).

MUSTANG: On March 26, great pitching by County Mounties' Trent Nishiguchi and Michael Cohen held On the Beach to one run; OTB pitchers Erik Langslet and Patrick Foudy didn't let the CM staff score many more (final score, 3-1). CM's Tevye Morgenrath drove in the winning runs; he and OTB's Robby Blagg were hot at catcher.

Brown Spaulding knocked off Carmel Realtors 8-4 on March 31. Hard-hitters for the winners were Peter Jamison (2-for-2), Ryan Lehr (triple), Evan Auld-Sussott and Albert Saroyan; Nick Campbell (2-for-3), and Eric Bensburg (double), were top Realtor hitters. Pitchers of note were Zach Friedman (R), Jamison and Jacob Silver (BS).

On the Beach won a close contest with Carmel Dental on March 31, 11-10. Sandy Greenfield and Erik Langslet each tripled and drove in three runs for the win; Robby Blagg contributed another RBI. Doubling and driving in CD runs were Trevor Fogg and Joseph Nichols; Patrick Foudy also doubled. Fogg, Foudy and Langslet drew praise for defensive skills in a game featuring many stolen bases on either side.

BRONCO: Vessey's and La Playa had scores of 9 and 7, respectively, when darkness ended their game on March 27 after three innings. Jonathan Smith (V) hit 2-for-3 with a double; LP's Jack Camp also doubled. Good base running by Ben Armbrust and Robert Jaques contributed to the Vessey score.

Pine Inn and Derek Rayne were also robbed by dusk of a full game — after four innings on March 28, the score was 9-8 Pine Inn. Chas Swallow (PI) nailed the first home run of the season; more hits came from teammates Laith Agha (2-for-2), and Andy Emerson (2-for-3). Dylan Tescher (3-for-3, double and triple), Brett Hogan (2-for-3, 2 doubles), and Aaron Baker (2-for-3), were top hitters for a good-looking Derek Rayne squad. Hogan also contributed a sharp double play.

The Express beat Carmel Valley Disposal 5-3 in five innings on March 29. Lindley Zerbe (CVD) and Matthew Allen (E) doubled; Allen turned in a strong pitching performance. Brent Sullivan drove in a CVD run; hitting for the Express were Robbie Nakamura, Kent Wehde, Nick Marazzo, Chris Arthur and Morgan Rogers.

On March 31, Derek Rayne topped CVD 8-3, despite hot bats from the CVD squad, notably Adam Zerbe (4-for-5), Brian Huntington (double, 3 RBI) and Brent Sullivan (double). DR's Ben Cook (2-for-3) doubled twice; teammate Aaron Baker was 2-for-2 and Brett Hogan 2-for-3. CVD's Brian Jones turned a double play.

Pine Inn narrowly defeated Vessey's March 31, 6-4. Vessey's tied the score in the second and went ahead in the third, but were held from further scoring by Laith Agha's tough pitching. John Smith (V) doubled and tripled; PI's Chas Swallow (2-for-3), and Daniel Palshaw each nailed two-run doubles. Agha and catcher Andy Emerson combined for a sharp put-out at home; another hot defensive combination were Thomas Nichols and Avner Bibliarz (V). Third baseman Seamus O'Reilly (V) fielded a hot grounder.

Why one million people choose Great American Bank.

Great financial opportunities, like our Advantage 3 CD.

Of course, it takes more than exceptional financial products and services to make a great bank, but Great American Bank's Advantage 3 CD is nevertheless one of the most rewarding.

AND

SOMETIMES THAT

By Nancy Hills

It's unanimous!

YOU HAVE to get up early to catch up with Nancy Fletcher. Literally, because she is desk officer at the Carmel Police Department from midnight to 8 a.m. Figuratively also, because of the esteem in which she is held by her fellow officers and by Chief Jack McGilvray.

Testifying to that esteem, the department's supervisors unanimously nominated Nancy for "Employee of the Year," and Chief McGilvray put the stamp of approval on their choice. A surprised Nancy received her plaque at the inspection and awards ceremony at the police department March 16. The citation mentioned "her attention to detail, thorough research, outstanding willingness to do more than her required tasks, professionalism, and consistent ability to dig for additional information, often leading to the successful conclusion of investigations."

All this from a desk officer? Well, the relative small Carmel Police Department gives all its officers unique opportunities to do a variety of things, and Nancy Fletcher makes the most of these opportunities. In fact it was that which attracted Nancy to the Carmel P.D. in July, 1986, after six years with the county sheriff's department.

"I like the variety," Nancy told me. "On my shift there is a little bit of everything." In addition to dispatching the officers, she indexes cases, tapes reports for the courts, and often follows a case from the first call to its conclusion. There seems to be something of the detective in this diminutive woman with the bright smile: "I enjoy the investigative work more than anything else," she admits. Her tenacity and her quick mind have often combined to move an investigation along; she sees connections.,

The midnight to 8 a.m. shift also fits in nicely with her devotion to other pleasures: her family, and her church. Husband Milton is with Marina's recreation department and he is a minister; their children — Milton Jr. (7), and Winnie (5), are active youngsters. Family outings are the Fletchers' special pleasure and "church" is mentioned more than once as we talk about personal interests.

Nancy didn't necessarily want to be in law enforcement when she grew up. But the idea of public service attracted her more than did her psychology courses at San Diego State, so she left college and went to work as a court clerk. A "bum" knee kept her out of consideration as a sherff's deputy, but she has found great satisfaction in her desk job. "It fits with my desire to serve the public," she said, "and I can help to see that the laws are upheld." Carmel delights her because it is small enough so that she can know the officers with whom she works and the citizens she serves. Having observed her in action with a senior citizen who came to the department the day she was honored, I think that not enough has been said — yet — about the personal qualities that inspire confidence and appreciation among Carmelites.

What does she see as important for these Carmelites in connection with police acitivities? "Awareness," she replied quickly. "Programs like Neighborhood Watch are the biggest deterrants to crime. Both residents and business people need to stay aware. Sometimes people hesitate to call in when they see or hear something suspicious, but they should call. They should also be aware of all the services offered by the Carmel Police Department, such as the seniors helping seniors program."

At this point, Nancy laughed. "As you can see, I'm not an exciting person! I'm boring." No, Nancy. Never boring. Delightful, and possessing all the qualities recognized by her fellow officers and appreciated by those whom she serves.

SOME WORDS I wrote in this column last October have returned to haunt me. Called to jury duty for the second time in six months, I was seated as a prospective juror in a DUI (driving under the influence), case — for the THIRD time. This time it was the judge who asked if any of us were members of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD). I confessed. Then the prosecuting attorney asked me if, as a writer (to which I had also confessed), I ever wrote about alcoholism. I said no, not making the connection between her question and this sentence in my Oct. 15 column: "...I hope it never comes to the point where membership in MADD is seen — in itself — as disqualification for serving on a jury in a DUI case."

But the defense attorney remembered that — to my amazement — and pounced. He quoted my words, quite accurately. "Did you say that?" Yes. And then, in due course: "The defense thanks and excuses juror number 53, Florence Mason."

NOW FOR three items about local critters.

The baby was not to be ignored. I first heard him from several blocks away on Scenic Road; his piercing cry was intended to catch his absent mother's ear. It did catch the attention of passersby, the Monterey County Sheriff's Department and Carmel's Animal Control Officer, Valerie Henderson. While we awaited the arrival of the SPCA, the beached pup rolled around in the sand in a cove off Scenic and continued to protest his abandonment. Then — cheers! The mother appeared, staying close to shore but still in the water. The baby got close to her, then washed back onto the sand. The mother waited patiently, her pup tried again and in short order they were rolling around together in the water. The mother hugged her pup, and off they went. "It was precious," Valerie reported. "I can imagine what she said to him!" Being

Are your attitudes about mental illness still in the dark ages?

Our notions about mental illness have a long, dark history. Sadly, age-old fears keep us from seeing mental illness for what it really is: a distressing medical disease. A disease that can be treated. For an informative booklet about mental illness, contact the American Mental Health Fund.

FIRE LINES

Earthquake!

APRIL IS Earthquake Preparedness Month. The campaign is sponsored by the governor's Office of Emergency Services, and this year is the sixth annual campaign.

Last year, as I wrote about Earthquake Preparedness Month, I knew that the experts predicted that northern California would be hit by a moderate to major earthquake sometime, but that "sometime" was always in the future. I am sure that others thought the same thing. Oct. 17, 1989 changed all that. The Loma Prieta Earthquake which devastated Santa Cruz and Watsonville and inflicted major damage in the San Francisco Bay Area brought home the fact that a major earthquake can happen here, and that most people were not prepared for the quake. Remember the long lines at the stores for batteries, water, and other emergency supplies?

This year, Earthquake Preparedness Month focuses on the theme of "Duck, Cover and Hold," which stresses the steps necessary to protect yourself during an earthquake, whether you are at home, in school, or at work. In addition, every resident is urged to stock up now on emergency supplies, which will add to your safety and comfort during and after an earthquake.

Duck, Cover and Hold!

When you feel an earthquake, DUCK under a desk or sturdy table. Stay away from windows, bookcases, file cabinets, heavy mirrors, hanging plants and other heavy objects that could fall. Watch out for falling plaster or ceiling tiles. Stay under COVER until the shaking stops. HOLD on to the desk or table. If it moves, move with it.

Here are some additional tips for specific locations:

• If you are in a building, you are not near a desk or table, move against an interior wall, and protect your head with your arms. DO NOT USE THE ELEVATORS in the building. Don't be surprised if the building fire or burglar alarms come on, or even the fire sprinkler system!

• If you are outdoors, move to a clear area, away form trees, signs, buildings, or downed electrical wires and poles.

• If you are on a sidewalk near a building, duck into a doorway to protect yourself from falling bricks, glass, plaster, and other debris.

• If you're driving, pull over to the side of the road and stop. Avoid overpasses, power lines, and other hazards. Stay in the car until the shaking stops.

• If you are in a crowded store or other public place, DO NOT rush for the exit. Move away from display shelves containing objects that could fall.

• If you are in a wheelchair, stay in it. Move to cover, if possible, lock your wheels, and protect your head with your arms.

• If you are in the kitchen, move away from overhead cupboards, the refrigerator, and the stove. (Take some time NOW to anchor appliances and install security latches on cupboard doors to reduce kitchen hazards.)

• If you are in a theater, stay in your seat and protect your head with your arms. DO NOT try to leave until the shaking is over, then leave in a calm and orderly manner.

After the shaking stops, remember to be prepared for aftershocks.

Beat the Quake!
Steps to Take
When an earthquake strikes
Duck, Cover and Hold
Whether you are in your home, a school classroom, a high-rise or another type of building, it is important to know how to protect yourself during an earthquake. Practice what to do during an earthquake and teach yourself and your family members to react automatically when the shaking starts. If you are outdoors when the shaking starts, get into an open area away from trees, buildings, walls and power lines. If you are indoors, follow the steps below:
DUCK
DUCK or drop down to the floor.
COVER
Take COVER under a sturdy desk, table or other furniture. If that is not possible, seek COVER against an interior wall and protect your head and neck with your arms. Avoid danger spots near windows, hanging objects, mirrors or tall furniture.
HOLD
If you take cover under a sturdy piece of furniture, HOLD on to it and be prepared to move with it. HOLD the position until the ground-stops shaking and it is safe to move.

a young mother herself (expecting her second child in May), no doubt she could.

This particular episode, not uncommon on our shores, had a successful outcome because the pup was healthy and the recommended procedures were carried out: people stayed nearby to guard the pup, but not so close as to frighten it further or to keep the mother away, and proper authorities were called. All in the day's work for them, perhaps; a delightful interlude for the rest of us.

MUCH HAS already been written about the "fish ladder" at River Beach. I want only to add a personal observation: that this has been one of those activities our community does so well. Business, environmental and volunteer interests came together, some of the people involved donating 16-hour days. And all for the possibility of saving a few trout.

I visited the scene daily for a week or so. The time that stands out in my mind was a cold, drizzly Friday morning when heavy surf and high tide combined to demonstrate the efficiency of the ladder. At that time (and to the date of this writing) there were no fish climbing the ladder, not even the few breeding pairs which could guarantee thousands of young. There WAS a harbor seal in the waters off shore; he may have had his own idea about where the fish should go. I submit that fish or not, the effort was successful in terms of community cooperation. And the stage may have been set for an earlier attack on the problem next year, if the drought continues.

THE CITY of Carmel is looking for a few good squirrels — tree squirrels. Why? "Because they belong here — this is CARMEL!" So said Animal Control Officer Valerie Henderson.

It seems that the city's squirrel population is waning. So "SOS — Save our Squirrels" — is heard about the land. The first step, now underway, is to get at the cause. "We just don't know," Valerie told me. "Could be some insecticide we don't know about, or the traffic..." While I was contemplating these and other possibilities, Valerie came up with the perfect answer: "Maybe the rents in Carmel are too high!"

SENIOR LINE

By 'Les' Lesser

Consumer Protection

IN THE wake of deception and fraud dealing with health insurance policies for the senior citizen, a new California Assembly Bill 2267 becomes effective Jan. 1.

This deals with the sale of Long-Term Care Policies and Home Health Care policies. The primary objective of this new Bill is to:

1. Prohibit agents from replacing a Long-Term Care Policy that results in a decrease in benefits and an increase in premium.
2. Prohibit agents from replacing a Long-Term Care Policy three or more times for an applicant within a 12-month period.
3. At time of initial contact, the applicant must be advised as to whether or not his/her name was received from a lead-generating device; and;
4. The agent must retain copies of all correspondence he has with the applicant/insured, including written comparisons of coverage or outlines of coverage provided to the prospective policyholder and all future correspondence.
5. All material must be forwarded to the company for retention in the policyholder's file and all records must be kept for a minimum of five years.

If you have any questions about this, please contact the Area Agency on Aging at (408) 757-5905.

What Now for Medicare Supplement Plans?

Since the Medicare Catastrophic Act was repealed by both Houses, the question people are asking: "Is my Medicare Supplement still good?" The answer is "yes" but each insurance company will be sending out a letter indicating how it is adapting its particular policy with Medicare. There are still some questions regarding what Congress may do about leaving parts of the Act in. This column will keep you posted.

(Need information on senior affairs? Write "Senior Line," Area Agency on Aging, 1184 Monroe Street, Suite 10, Salinas CA 93906 or call 372-7662 or 757-5905. "Senior Line" needs your name, address and phone number, but these will be withheld on request. Printed letters may be edited to meet space requirements.)

The SPCA urges Pine Cone readers not give live animals to small children as Easter presents. When the Easter morning excitement is gone and the baby grows up, who will take care of it? Adopting a living animal is a long-term commitment: he or she will need proper shelter and food, water, human attention and affection and veterinary care for as long as it lives, and a bunny, for example, may live five to ten years. Young children should not be expected to accept the responsibility of caring for an animal, and adults with such expectations are unrealistic.

Visit the SPCA Animal Shelter on Highway 68 across from the main entrance to The Laguna Seca Recreation Area, Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. or weekends, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Call for holiday hours.

Please Note: Animals pictured are subject to prior adoption or return to owner. Adoptions to qualified homes only. If these animals have been adopted, there are other lovable dogs and cats available. Call 373-2631 for information.

Woman's Civic Club of Pacific Grove is not the only excitement the local federated club is feeling this month.

Part of the excitement is the realization that this is the 28th Annual luncheon and fashion show for the organization which was founded in 1962 by Nadine Annand as president with $100 as the award to a Pacific Grove high school graduating senior seeking a career in nursing. In 1989, Kendra Peterson of Pacific Grove was awarded $1,000 and is attending Monterey Peninsula College.

The second event taking place is the celebration and nation-wide telecast of the recognition of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the General Federation of Women's Clubs on Tuesday, April 24.

Easter Eggcitement will start with a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. in the Pacific Grove Community Center followed by fashions by Prim and Proper, well-known Pacific Grove dress shop. Models will include members Yvonne Borgman, Thelma Cram and Mimi Jursik.

Thyre Maitre is chairwoman for the luncheon with Lydia Grayson as assistant. Lee Atha Gore will give out door prizes, numerous and a traditional part of the annual event. Decorations will be created by Polly Nickell, Della Hildreth, Meg Manus and Nadine Annand.

Donations for the fund-raising is $10 and reservations may be made with Nadine Annand, Martha Herring or Polly Nickel.

Auction items

CO-CHAIRWOMEN Wendy Grover and Pam Smith helped student Ryan Moss perfect his swing with a Ben Hogan golf club as 49er great Joe Montana looked on; both of these items will be available at upcoming All Saints Day School Spring Auction, set for Sunday Aug. 29 at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

CHURCH WOMEN TO HEAR ABOUT "WE CARE" PROGRAM

"WE CARE," the community service program carried out by prisoners at the Soledad Correctional Facility, will be the subject of Church Women United's meeting on Friday, April 6, at First Methodist Church, Sunset Drive at 17 Mile Drive, Pacific Grove.

Two members of the serving teams will speak on the projects, one of which, that for the visually handicapped, has reached many areas of this country and, with the Flying Doctors, into Mexico.

Both men and women interested in the subject have been invited to attend and those who wish to contribute outworn glasses have been urged to do so.

OUTREACH LUNCHEON FOR SENIORS

This weekly luncheon is specially designed as a social event. The programs are varied and often include slides or a demonstration. The lunch features homemade soup, salad and sandwich, and is complemented by a surprise dessert. More than 100 seniors attend regularly.

WORLD AFFAIRS COUNCIL TO PRESENT EASTERN EUROPE PANEL DISCUSSION

"Eastern Europe: Fresh Perspectives" will be presented as a panel discussion, co-sponsored by the World Affairs Council and the Monterey Institute of International Studies Alumni Associaiton, on Saturday, April 7 at 10:30 a.m.

With the breakup of the Communist Bloc, the nations of Eastern Europe face tremendous challenges in the 1990's as the standing arrangements of the last 40 years crumble.

Participants in the panel discussion of these challenges include Lech Choroszucha, a Polish emigre who received his post-secondary education in the United States and now lives in the Bay Area, and Professor Benes of the DLI, a native of Czechoslovakia who recently visted there and is a personal friend of President Vaclav Havel. The third panelist will be a current internationalist from Eastern Europe who is a graduate student at MIIS. Moderating will be Forrest Studebaker, who is presently teaching a course at MIIS entitled "The German Question."

The discussion will be held at the Morse Auditorium, Monterey Institute of International Studies, 425 Van Buren St., Monterey. April 7th is also Internatioanl Bazaar Day at MIIS, from 12 to 4 p.m., with entertainment, exhibits, and international food tables, all open to the public.

1990 CALIFORNIA SPECIAL OLYMPICS NORTHERN SECTIONAL BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT IN SALINAS

On April 7 and 8 more than 30 teams with over 350 Special Olympians from all over California will converge on Salinas for a weekend of basketball competition. Monterey County Special Olympics will host the 6th Annual California Special Olympics Northern Sectional Basketball Tournament. This showcase for these very special athletes is the qualifying round for the All-State Championships to be held in Carson later this year.

The popularity of this event has grown so dramatically that the number of teams competing necessitates holding the tournament over two days at three local schools. Ceremonies will commence at Hartnell College at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, April 7, with the competition immediately following at Hartnell College, Palma High School, and Washington Middle School.

Opening ceremonies will feature Salinas Mayor Russell Jeffries, the Joint Services Color Guard from the Defense Language Institute, the Marine Corps Rifle Drill Team, vocalist Danel White, the Monterey Community Band, and master of ceremonies Brian Higgins from KMBY.

The awards ceremony on Sunday, April 8 will include special appearances to honor the athletes with the Special Olympic medals by former NFL athletes, Del Rodgers, M.L. Carter, Gary Hayes, and more. In addition, the Marine Corps Drill Team will salute these special athletes.

These young athletes are committed and driven by the determination to be the best possible athletes and citizens can be, but they need our help. Monterey County Special Olympics has developed a program that will share the richness of their determination with your involvement in the Free Agency Program. It is an opportunity for area businesses and individuals to "sign" a Special Olympian Free Agent.

PUBLIC RADIO STATION KAZU-FM RAISES $45,000 IN SPRING '90 PLEDGE DRIVE

Community-supported radio station KAZU-FM reached its goal of $45,000 during its Spring '90 pledge drive. Over 800 listeners called to pledge their support and voice their commitment to public radio. Gospel Meditations, hosted by Buddy and Nicki Lowe, received the greatest number of pledges and raised $3,463. The Metropolitan Opera, hosted by Barbara Smythe, and My Sister's House, hosted by JT Mason, also received very strong support. Both programs raised more than $2,000.

Development Director Paulette Lynch was especially pleased that KAZU reached the goal ahead of schedule. "By finishing on Sherman Lee's blues program we were able to present our "Tribute to Motown" special without interruption — as a thanks to our listeners!"

Listener contributions are vital to the financial health of the 12-year old station. Rich Terry, station manager, explains, "KAZU gets additional funding from business underwriters and granting organizations such as the Monterey County Cultural Council. However, they base their contributions on the support we already have from our listeners." The annual grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, for example, matches listener contributions at the rate of approximately 30 percent.

Listeners were invited to pledge at one of several levels: Individual - $35; Household - $60; Sustainer - $100; and Grand KAZU - $200. One of the popular levels is the innovative $12 by 12 club - contributors donate just $12 each month for the year. Many listeners took advantage of thank-you gifts such as latest releases in CD or tape, the KAZU T-shirt, or special gifts donated by individuals and businesses.

Lynch was also pleased at the level of community participation in the drive. "Over 100 volunteers were involved and they all performed better than ever before — behind the scenes and behind the mikes. Businesses like Nob Hill and Lucky Stores also kept the volunteers well fed."

Up next for the station's fund-raising efforts is a joint benefit with the Big Sur Land Trust — The California Brewmasters Classic — hosted by The Monterey Sheraton on Friday, May 4. This premier event features unlimited tasting of premium beers from microbreweries around the state and gourmet hors d'oeuvres from many of the finest restaurants on the Monterey Peninsula. The tasting is followed by dancing. Tickets are on sale starting April 1 at Center Stage Ticketing in Monterey.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Marriages made in heaven deserve a gold star

From March 26, 1981
Carmel Pine Cone

Oh almighty and eternal God, we humbly ask thee as our loving Father to bless all Rotarians gathered here and be pleased to bless the food we partake and the drink we quaff.

We know that in your paternal solitude no thought of theirs is left unguarded, no tear unheeded, no joy unnoticed.

Recently, a Rotarian told me his wife was the light of his life. I told him that these words had a nice poetic ring like a St. Valentine's Day card. Seriously, he said that before his marriage he lived in a kind of physical and mental darkness. "My wife not only brought me out of darkness, she forced me to be a light."

There are various types of light; the artificial light that gives us a headache. There is the blinding light that frightens robbers. There is the limelight that some men demand and some wives give them. My Rotarian friend said that his ideal wife was none of these. Rather, she was a good and godly woman, a giving person and that she had taught him to share.

Oh Lord, help us to bring that kind of light and love to each other; husband to wife, wife to husband, friend to friend and even to our enemies.

In last Sunday's paper there was a quote from the Argentinian Nobel Peace Prize-winner Adolfo Perez Esquievel: "No one can sow seeds with fists. To sow seeds one must open one's hands."

In my long life as a priest I have met many arguments for celibacy, but once in awhile I encounter a marriage made in heaven. I pray to God it is yours. If anyone feels he qualifies, come up and see me and I'll put a gold star on your marriage license, presuming, that is, that you have one.

Amen.

Anyone interested in becoming a part of this program should contact Desk Officer Cathy Dampier at Carmel Police Department, 624-6403.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Alzheimere's Disease is getting increasing attention, but it is not a new disorder. It got its name in 1906 from Dr. Alois Alzheimer, the German physician who discovered certain brain-cell changes which are associated with the disease. Alzheimer's Disease is irreversible, progressively weakening memory and other intellectual functioning. According to the National Institutes of Health, the disorder affects 2 to 3 percent of the United States population. It is not contagious and is not caused by hardening of arteries. Much research is under way to determine the cause and methods of prevention.

Malcolm Cowley, a literary critic and historian since 1919, drew a lot of fan mail from contemporaries when he published the book, "The View from 80." Then, at 86, he wrote an article with some updated observations and advice. One strong recommendation: On getting out of bed and standing up, take one sideward step to keep your balance. "That sideward step is useful in many situations; practice it."

Humpback whales give voice in new coast-inspired album

By ANNE PAPINEAU

IMAGINE THE spirit of the Big Sur coastline preserved, as though in a bottle, to be enjoyed over and over again. Such is the achievement of John Huling, who again turned his senses and musical talents to work to create a new recording, Blue Canyons.

ARTS & LEISURE

The album is a portable way to experience the essence of the coast. It was created by a Pacific Grove composer who usually begins his day very early — so that he and his wife can view sunrise from a Big Sur vantage point.

"It's like a ritual," Huling explains. "Joni and I just love the outside, and she loves to go. We drive down Highway 1 at a snail's pace, down the coast to see where the wild iris, the mustard and the lupin are now blooming."

The couple makes this journey so often, that they have encountered many extraordinary sights.

"We've seen baby whales with their mothers, sometimes up to 300 dolphins at once, and this morning, we saw a shipwreck," he says.

Huling has discovered ways to translate his visual observances into audio form. And his endeavors have met with success. His first album, Open Spaces, sold 8,000 copies in less than five months — no mean feat for an independently crafted recording. Its successor, the newly released Blue Canyons, sold 3,500 copies in a week.

Both albums are really one-man efforts. Huling writes all the music, plays each of the instruments, and then records them on his 32-track Kawai Digital Recorder. Except for the coastal jaunts that inspire his work, all is accomplished in his Pacific Grove studio, and released under Huling's own Novox Music label.

Curiously, this composer and musician did not pursue formal studies of music. And he is a comparative newcomer to the recording game.

"I don't read or write music, and I never really had any lessons except on drums. But I can play by ear," Huling explains. "With music, I finally realized you should do what comes out of your heart."

For several years, Huling, 36, owned an advertising agency in Orange County. He was also a commercial photographer who counted real estate developers and Architectural Digest magazine among his regular clients.

But six years ago, he was diagnosed with lymphoma, a form of cancer. On the advice of his doctor, Huling left both advertising and Southern California in a single move.

"I said to my wife, 'Would you like to live in Big Sur?' When she answered 'yes,' I said, 'How about tonight?' "

JOHN HULING of Pacific Grove has released his second album, Blue Canyons, which makes use of pan flutes, synthesizer, humpback whale voices and other original musical blends. His compositions can also be heard illuminating the "Living Treasures of the Pacific" exhibit at the Monterey Bay Aquarium and several television broadcasts. (Joni Brown photograph.)

JAZZ TIDES

The Magic Lady

COMING ATTRACTIONS: Don't be surprised if a new food and drink place hereabout makes a strong commitment to live jazz. Formal announcement's not far off. The crew includes an experienced owner who loves this music — and The Magic Lady from South Coast. (Her husband happens to stand amongst our planet's fine musicians.) Ace Jazz Buff Larry Storelli pledges complete details when the time's right. Grand Opening? You bet —

NOT FOR NOTHING did Monterey Peninsula Chamber name Ruth Fenton last year's Outstanding Citizen. Her long and deep public service record includes founding Youth Music Monterey. And then hooking up that worthy organization with the high-level Eastman School of Music.

Ruth on gifted young folks: "If their needs aren't met, they may become bored or disruptive. They may end up feeling like bad people — and eventually drop out."

So then. Youth Music's first Jazz Camp in association with Eastman will be held June 17 till July 7 at Robert Louis Stevenson School. And as always, the tuition structure makes room for both boarders and day students. Brochures and applications may be obtained by calling Summer program reps at 375-1992.

"Students receive individual instruction by Eastman faculty and Monterey Jazz Festival clinicians," basic literature comments. "Each student also has the opportunity to perform with these musicians in big bands and combos." (Pros and students stage a full schedule of free public concerts annually. Good stuff.)

Camp Director Jim Doser has pro credentials aplenty — and heads up Eastman Summer High School Jazz Workshop. His staff features handpicked player/educators from different parts of the country: Brian Scanlon, Jeff Holmes, Robert Hudson, Matt Harris (superb keyboardist), Don Kasper, Roland Wilcox. Special guest artists? The outstanding Ray Ricker (woodwinds, composer, author) and monster pianist Bill Dobbins (jazz textbook writer who also works with men like Clark Terry and James Moody).

Robert Frost handles the jazz vocal element (8/1-11) and Monterey Peninsula College's Don Schamber the workshop for jazz teachers (7/2-6). The latter offers two units through San Jose State University.

Eastman's under the University of Rochester umbrella. Eastman Director Robert Freeman recently said of the local organism: "We anticipate a greatly expanded recruitment and, as a result, a raising of standards. But we understand that the opportunities offered Monterey County resident students must continue and be specifically supported and developed."

FAST HANDS — He's called Mister Goodfingers. Bobby Murray cooked hard at the Monterey Bay Blues Festival benefit in Seaside's Oldemeyer Center. Peninsula-wide turnout loved the band. (Will Wallace photo.)

ADD MOSE. When he made that swing through the Monterey Bay Area, this vocalist and composer and powerful pianist tried out tunes from his forthcoming album. It's My Backyard on the Blue Note label. Producer Ben Sidran and Mose Allison did the session in New Orleans with Crescent City sidemen. An advance draft of Ben's liner notes quotes Mose as calling drummer John Vidacovich "a guy down there who can really play my music the way it should be played."

During an exclusive interview, Mose praised as well the late Kenneth Patchen. His favorite poet and a strong influence, our subject said. Patchen was a modern prophet — would Mose agree that Allison works have entered that rare realm? "If the songs are prophetic, that's good. I'm simply expressing my observations. All anybody wants to do is have a good time and save the world. Maybe Kenneth Patchen said that. Maybe there are some who do want to destroy the world. I think most people want to save the world, and we're going to need a lot of them. It all boils down to: somebody's money versus somebody else's life. Have I put that line into a song? Not yet, but I might."

One could almost hear his thoughts meshing. Then: "That new song's line about the hole in the ozone layer. If the ozone layer's stripped away, there'll be no crops. So, food wars. It could go either way — the destruction of civilization or its improvement. The ozone layer might be the way we've already blown it. And when you've got people starving in the streets, that's not too good. Another new song mentions 'people who live outside.' Double meaning there. We have homeless people who live outside — and I also mean people who live outside the system."

The 62-year-old Mose said he's "a relatively happy man. Audre and I have been married for 39 years. I'm on the road 175-200 days per year. One of my rules for middle age: performing well is its own reward. I'll go out as long as it's gratifying. Sometimes I think this's Paradise right here — also the promised Land and Hell. It's all right here. I'm not saying I know that. I'm kidding on the square. There might be some truth to it. I feel like I've found Paradise a few times, and I'm not talking about drugs. At times I've felt as good as I can feel. I can't analyze it. It has to do with an appreciation of life itself."

Like Patchen, Mose has no eyes for offering pep talks to younger artists. "If you need advice, forget it. People who keep doing it don't need advice. There are no formulas — you've got to learn it by yourself."

Finally: "Our oldest daughter's a lawyer living in New Orleans. She has a daughter — so I'm a Grandpa. I'm trying to stay busy, trying to make music that's valid from my own viewpoint. I'm having a good year. That's all you can ask in this business. You go by the year."

THEATER REVIEW

By James P. Kinney

El Teatro Campesino presents Culture Clash

EL TEATRO CAMPESINO, the organization which began as guerilla theater on the back of flatbed trucks and in the vineyards of the central valley of California during the Delano farm workers' strike of the mid-1960s, is now celebrating its 25th year, recognized widely as the preeminent Hispanic theater group in the United States.

It seems fitting, given that milestone, that El Teatro should now be presenting an original comedy review, Culture Clash, at their playhouse on Fourth Street in their home base of colorful San Juan Bautista.

Ours is not and has never been a peaceful, homogenized society. Entry into its power structures and upper economic strata by individual members of immigrant groups has always been painful, dangerous, and full of frustrations. While Malcolm X's description of American society as "the most violent society on earth" may be challenged by many, it is hard to deny that those words of our second great, perceptive black American prophet — who came up from our ghettos' mean streets as dramatically as Martin Luther King came down from our churches' pulpits — are closer to the mark than many of us would care to admit. That we should be celebrating the anniversaries of their violent deaths is a coincidence and an irony that ought not to go unnoticed.

Culture Clash is about that kind of assimilation's pain and danger, treated as it has so often been in the past by the cauterizing, healing vehicle of humor.

The show, as much night club act as theatrical play, is written and performed by three bright, talented, young Hispanic actors/comedians, Richard Montoya, Herbert Siguenza and Ricardo Salinas. Recently returned from a cross-country tour which included performances in Boston, New York, Connecticut, Chicago, San Antonio and Los Angeles, Culture Clash seemed comfortably at home in front of a boisterous, but friendly, largely Hispanic audience on Saturday night, March 31st, when this reviewer attended their performance.

The show is a series of fast-paced scenes and impressions, madcap, perceptive, raunchy, hilarious and profane — about the Chicano-Latino experience of and resistance to the assimilation into a mainstream American culture. Hence, I would suppose, the appropriate title.

In the opening scene, surrounded by eerie lighting and somber music, the three appear, unsmiling, half-silhouetted in dark hats, shades and long coats. A deep voice-over portentously announces their arrival. Then, quickly in succession, we are presented with a series of skits, slapsticks, improvs and raps which include references to Joe Montana, Julio Inglesias, Hispanic television, the lambada dance craze, La Llorona, Santeria, cholos, Geraldo Rivera, even Che Guevara.

They sing, they dance, they mock, they satirize. Much of the humor is directed at themselves, without pity, without much preaching. It is as if they are in a hurry to get everything in.

The show is done mostly, but precariously in English. Hispanic and Mexican slang words and expressions abound. Some of the best laugh lines, I must confess, were lost on me. Other scenes were mostly in what has been called Spanglish. But so much of the humor is visual and physical that lack of a fluent knowledge of Spanish does not prevent the humor from coming through.

This is a very talented, imaginative trio, whether they are describing a Chinese restaurant run by Chicanos, evoking the macho scene in a Watsonville dancehall, or recreating the ambiance of Father Junipero Serra's Taqueria or the "Stand and Deliver" pizzeria.

Host Luis Valdez calls Culture Clash "the cutting edge of fresh, raw Latin comic genius." David Armstrong of the San Francisco Examiner calls it "streetwise comic theater rooted in grassroots Hispanic culture." Ed Conroy of the San Antonio Express calls it "daring, hilariously sick, side-splitting laughter so good it hurts." I say it's a fine evening of wild, high energy entertainment and encourage people to see it.

Culture Clash has a limited run. Call 1-623-2445 for reservations.

Leonardo concert ranges from Beethoven to folk

THE LEONARDO Trio will perform works by Mendelssohn and Beethoven as well as Frank Martin's Trio on Irish Folk Themes in recital Friday, April 6 at Sunset Theater in Carmel. Tickets are $10, $5 for those under 21, at the door before the concert. For additional information, call 625-2212.

THE CHAMBER Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula will present the Leonardo Trio in concert at 8 p.m. Friday, April 6 in Sunset Theater. The theater is located on San Carlos Street at Ninth Avenue in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The Trio, with Cameron Grant, piano; Jonathan Spitz, cello, and Erica Kiesewetter, violin, will play Frank Martin's Trio on Irish Folk Themes, Beethoven's Trio in E Flat Major, Op. 70, No. 2; and Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C Minor, Op. 66.

Formed in 1985, the Leonardo Trio was finalist in the 1989 Walter W. Naumburg Foundation International Chamber Music Competition, prizewinners in the 1989 Concert artist Guild Competition, and were awarded a Reader's Digest Meet — the Composer Commissioning Grant in the inaugural year of that program. The 92nd Street Y presented the Leonardo Trio in their New York Recital Debut last December. The Trio has performed in many U.S. cities and has also appeared at numerous arts festivals.

Cameron Grant, pianist, has toured Japan as a soloist with Philharmonia Virtuosi, appeared with the Renaissance City Chamber Orchestra in the Middle East, and recently made his New York concerto debut playing Ravel in Town Hall. A graduate of the California Institute of the Arts and the New England Conservatory, Grant has performed with the New York Music Ensemble, Manhattan Quartet and Dakota Quartet. Additionally, as a member of the Grant and Winn duo-piano team, he and his partner, James Winn have performed more than 250 concerts in the United States, Germany and Canada during the past decade.

Jonathan Spitz, cellist, is the first prize winner of the Washington International Competition, the Augusta Symphony Competition, and the Ohio Valley Competition.

Erica Kiesewetter, violinist, is well known to chamber music audiences. As first violinist of the Colorado Quartet (1979-1982) she performed throughout the U.S., Brazil, England and France and won prizes at the Coleman (California) and at the Evian (France) Competitions.

Single tickets are $10 ($5 for those under 21) at the door before the concert. For information call 625-2212.

Brochures and membership applications will be available at the concert for the Chamber Music Society's 1990/91 season with performances by the Cleveland Quartet, Razoumovsky Plus Larsen (A Piano Quartet), the Angeles Quartet, the Orford Quartet and the Waverly Consort.

Artist signs 'First Impressions'

EDWARD NORTON Ward will sign his new book, First Impressions, during an exhibition of his paintings on Sunday, April 8. Wine and hors d' oeuvres will be served during the reception, set 4 to 6 p.m. in the Thunderbird Bookshop in the Barnyard, Carmel. Admission is free.

John Huling takes cue from sea

Huling views his exit from the hectic world of advertising as a life-saving move. And he discovered many rewards in his second career.

"I've found that as you get older and more stable, you don't need the 'big magilla' to impress you. I will say this. I'm happier now not only in my personal life, but also with my music," Huling says.

"I just love doing this. In 20 years of photography, nobody ever asked me to autograph a photo. And people ask me all the time to autograph my tapes."

Morning treks beside the ocean are a vital link in the creation of an album.

"I've learned never to be at a loss for inspiration — we just go to a new place," he adds. "Joni and I take walks and bike rides. We've travelled to Idaho, Oregon, New Mexico."

Each album begins with a concept. Huling has already begun his third.

"With Blue Canyons, I think the title expresses a diametric theme. Blue is the sky and then you look down into canyons. I think my third tape might focus on the Southwest; yet I'm very much a water person, too."

Huling's albums are available in local record shops as well as the Nature Company on Ocean Avenue in Carmel. But his work can also be experienced outside these venues.

the "Pacific Winds" theme from Huling's Open Spaces album was used during a segment about U.S. aquariums broadcast over the Connie Chung Show on CBS.

The "Living Treasures of the Pacific" exhibit, which opened last fall at the Monterey Bay Aquarium, is augmented by special music composed by Huling. He is also at work composing music for the aquarium in Newport, Ore.

And PBS will employ his themes in an upcoming television program titled Alaska's Whales and Wildlife.

Huling is generous in sharing the credit for his successful music.

"My wife and I are a team, I think in that context," he explains. "I come up with a concept, and when I start to get away from it, she puts me back on track, saying to 'go with your feelings.' As a photographer, I loved the feeling of Ansel Adams' landscapes. They always had the subliminal feeling of 'save this, it's sacred.' I've tried to put that feeling of warmth into my music."

CARMEL VALLEY photographer William Giles, who captured this untitled image, is one of 60 artists, sculptors and photographers whose work will be displayed as part of the "Dreaming Art" exhibition at the Cherry Foundation Gallery. The third annual festival is a month-long array of programs focusing on art forms mined from the unconscious. The festival opens Saturday, April 7. The Cherry Foundation is on Guadalupe and Fourth in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Admission is free.

Dreams influenced multi-media exhibit opening at Cherry Hall

"DREAMING ART, Seeing the Unconscious," a comprehensive survey of dream-inspired and surreal artwork, opens for a month-long exhibition on Saturday, April 7 at the Cherry Foundation.

Enigmatic animal-like forms, explosive patterns, ghostly shapes and vibrant colors create an expressionistic circus of the imagination in the all-media exhibit presenting the work of 50 peninsula artists.

The exhibit is the centerpiece of a month-long series of programs focusing on art forms evoked from the unconscious mind and organized by the Cherry Foundation in collaboration with the Friends of C.G. Jung.

Participants in the exhibit are encouraged to appropriate images from their dreams, visions and intuition and adopt them to a medium of their choice. The result is a compelling mixture of disparate images, shapes and forms unified by what Jung called "the archetypal depths." The exhibit can be seen through April 28.

A reception for the artists will be held from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, April 7 in the foundation's gallery located at Fourth and Guadalupe, Carmel.

The exhibit and programs are made possible, in part, through a grant from the Monterey County Cultural Council.

The Cherry Foundation gallery is open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Friends of C.G. Jung gather

A LIFE OF Dreams, the first videotape in a series titled The Wisdom of the Dream, will be presented Friday, April 6 by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung. The series was produced in Great Britain and chronicles Jung's life, his work and its impact. The program begins at 7 p.m. at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

Interview material from most of the major survivors among Jung's pupils is included in the films. The series uses an imaginative visual approach to illustrate every aspect of Jung's life, work and influence. It includes previously unseen footage of Jung himself and location filming which retraces his journeys in pursuit of proofs of the collective unconscious and the meaning of mythology.

As one critic put it, seeing the film is "an encounter with a man of genius and humility whose devotion to understanding and curing psychological pain affected everyone around him."

The final two sections of the film series will be shown on the last two Fridays of the month. The presentations are sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung. This is an informal collection of people who are sharing an enthusiasm for the seminal ideas of the Swiss physician.

The public is invited to attend this and all other meetings of the group. Prior registration is suggested but not required, as is a modest donation to help defray expenses.

Camerata Singers explore 'Sacred and the Profane'

THE SUBJECT MATTER was "The Sacred and the Profane" and Dr. Vahe Aslanian and the Camerata Singers of Monterey County gave an exhaustive overview of the "profane" part of it in a performance Saturday night which was held in the Monterey Peninsula College Music Hall.

Dr. Aslanian is justly noted for his fresh and innovative programming constructions and combinations and this was very apparent in the Camerata Singers Spring Concert. There is, of course, a built-in contrast in the juxtaposition of "Sacred" and "Profane" and in music this idea has intrigued composers down through the ages. While "Sacred" is obviously religious music, "Profane" is really only its secular opposite. It is the music of the people and that is mainly love songs.

But no matter what the moving spirit of the program was, the chorus was given an enormous task to sing its way through. The "Sacred" part opened with the Renaissance motet "Nigra Sum Sed Formosa" by de Victoria. The text was from the Bible, but from the "Song of Songs" and so was also about love. Sung a cappella, it displayed restraint, concentration and dynamic control. A Brahms motet, "Schaffe in mir Gott," was slow, reverential and carefully groomed. Two Gregorian Chants in a gently modern setting by Durufle were carefully intoned, but lacked contrast.

Twenty-four love songs from 14 countries, many of the songs sung with exceptionally clear diction in their original languages and with even the English being understandable, made up the bulk of the entertainment. There were some familiar songs like "Cockles and Mussels," "Shenandoah" and "Annie Laurie." But mostly the repertoire was fresh and unfamiliar. Some worked better than others. Too often, the effect was of church choir singing where the effort of achieving correct pitch, rhythm and clarity took the spirit out of the singing. Yet when the music insisted on life and verve, it was somehow created, showing it was within the scope of the group.

There was far too much a cappella singing. This is a strenuous challenge for a chorus that rehearses once a week. Those numbers with piano accompaniment were a welcome touch of variety and made for a different tonal color and even appeared to give the group a feeling of security. William Faulkner's Irish harp was used both as Mariachi-type solo and as an accompanying instrument, adding yet another touch of spice to the proceedings.

It is easy to tell that this chorus is made up of people who love to sing and who have a high regard for their leader. They showed their dedication in the care they took and the accuracy they achieved, but they ended up singing carefully rather than lovingly. The spirit of the texts got lost as a result.

The Monterey Brass Quartet opened the program with a bright sounding Gabrieli "Canzona" and some brief Purcell pieces, providing yet another touch of variety to the program.

CRITIC AT LARGE

Bad News Bearers

THE NEWS just keeps getting worse for the beleaguered Monterey Pop Music Festival.

Last year, organizers tried to revive the history-making spirit and performances of the fabled Monterey Pop Festival held 20 years earlier at the same location (Monterey Fairgrounds), but the event was a unmitigated disaster, both financially and artistically.

Now agents for some of the artists who were advertised as performing at the festival and were never paid have banded together and have filed an "involuntary bankruptcy" petition with the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in San Jose March 26th. The petition requests an order for "relief" under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code.

Specifically, Spotlight Enterprises Limited, Arne Brogger, Tapestry Artists, and Creative Artists Agency, Inc., representing performers such as Jay Black & the Americans, Allen Toussaint, Canned Heat, War, Country Joe McDonald and House of Freaks, are listed as creditors, claiming a total of more than $17,000.

The petition, filed by Monterey attorney David Heaslett, lists the debtor as Harry Crawford of Pacific Grove. Crawford is the founder and director of Monterey Pop Music Festival Inc., the name taken by the revived festival. He or his attorney must answer the petition within 20 days of its filing, March 26.

Reached at work Wednesday morning, Crawford said he wasn't sure what to make of the petition, which he said his lawyer had not received ("I'm going to hand-deliver a copy to him tonight.")

"I really don't know what's going on," said Crawford. "If they manage to declare bankruptcy, perhaps we won't have to pay off any of our debts. It's a stupid move on their part, but at this point I just don't have any idea."

Crawford saw the latest action as possibly a ploy to either get some money out of the disaster or to get some sort of tax break.

"I guess what they're trying to do is get it so they can write it off," he said.

According to Mike Evans of Pacific Grove-based Monarch Entertainment, a group which was to aid Crawford in signing performers and to secure film and television rights for the festival, debts incurred by the festival could total almost $200,000 and that the petition was just the first action taken of more to come.

"It's going to come to a head, there's no question about that," he said. "Once we're given the OK, we'll come up with a plan for a way for people to get their money back."

Stay tuned, this thing has a life of its own.

Chinese instruments star in free Carmel concert

The Oriental Art Society of The Monterey Peninsula will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 10 in the community room of the Corssroads.

Kerry Thompson will play the classical Chinese gu zheng and display and discuss other Chinese instruments from his collection. The gu zheng is more familiar to most Americans in its incarnation as the Japanese koto.

Thompson returned recently from a year in China where he studied Chinese music while serving as visiting professor of the French horn at the Central Conservatory in Beijing.

Peninsula music lovers are already familiar with Kerry Thompson's music. He has been the music director at Hidden Valley Music Seminars, a member of the Monterey County Symphony, and music director for many recent Forest Theater Guild musical productions.

Thompson had to leave China during the disturbances last June.

KERRY THOMPSON will play the classical Chinese Gu Zheng and will discuss other Chinese musical instruments during the Tuesday, April 10 meeting of the Oriental Art Society of the Monterey Peninsula.

ON STAGE

Les Liaisons Dangereuses

Les Liaisons Dangereuses*, Christopher Hampton's study of cynicism, sensuality, morality and seduction, continues the Season of New Plays at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center. Discount previews are set at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday, April 5-6. Les Liaisons Dangereuses will have its formal opening at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 7, when wine and refreshments are included in the ticket price.

Set among the aristocrats of pre-Revolutionary France, the play centers of LeVicompte de Valmont, a cynical, pleasure-seeking seducer and his former mistress and co-conspirator, the Marquise de Merteuil. Mickie Mosley Moorer directs Stephen Moorer and Dorian Ellis in the lead roles.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 7 p.m. Sundays until May 5. One Sunday matinee has been scheduled for 2 p.m. April 22.

Cafe seating opens one hour before showtime, with a variety of sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres, desserts, beer, wine and soft drinks available before the show and at intermission. The GroveMont Theater Arts Center is at 320 Hoffman (between Lighthouse and Hawthorne) in New Monterey.

Ticket prices on Thursdays and Sundays are $8.50 general and $7 for students, seniors and military. Tickets on Fridays and Saturdays are $9.50 general and $8 for students, seniors and the military.

Advance tickets may be purchased through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. For reservations, call the GroveMont Theater at 649-6852.

STEPHEN MOORER portrays cynical, pleasure-seeking seducer LeVicompte de Valmont in the GroveMont Theater Arts Center staging of Christopher Hampton's Les Liaisons Dangereuses.

Altar of the West

Altar of the West, a fictionalized dramatization of the day that journalist Ambrose Bierce, poet George Sterling and novelist met in Carmel, will be presented by The Western Stage.

The play, by Bill Broder, investigates the artistic spirit and sacrifice of the artist. Each shared a respect and nurturing of each other's work, and care for the environment and a deep affection for Carmel.

Following the presentation of Altar of the West, the playwright, director and actors will be available for discussion with the audience.

Altar of the West will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 5, and 2 p.m. Sunday, April 8, in the Studio Theater at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. Admission is free, however reservations should be made in advance. For reservations, call 375-2111 or 755-6816.

The Skin of Our Teeth

The Western Stage continues the New Visions Festival through April 8 in the Performing Arts Center at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. All performances are offered free of charge.

New Visions is a multi-faceted performing arts festival which focuses on the theater artist: actors in solo performance, older works seen through the eyes of young directors, fresh new plays by new playwrights in various stages of development, and an opportunity for the patron to experience theater from the inside out.

Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, The Skin of Our Teeth, will be staged by director Jon Selover in a low-tech environment, keeping the focus on the actors, the director and the play.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Friday, April 6, on the Main Stage in the Hartnell College Performing Arts Center.

For additional information about this free show, contact the Western Stage at 375-2111 or 758-1221.

Godspell

The New Testament-grounded musical, Godspell, plays at Monterey's Wharf Theater. Gina Welch-Hagen directs this classic, which was written by John Michael Tabelak and Stephen Schwartz.

Curtain is at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 8 p.m. Sunday through April 8.

Admission is $10 general and $5 for children 12 and under. Group rates are also available. The Wharf Theater is located on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. For information or reservations, call 649-2333 or 372-1373.

The Hand of the Law

A greedy politician of the Old West schemes to defraud a man of his rightful mine shares, but in the end, justice prevails in The Hand of the Law.

This melodramatic 19th century classic is presented at California's First Theatre.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

The theater, the oldest in the state, is located at the corner of Scott and Pacific streets in historic downtown Monterey.

Tickets are $6 for adults, $5 for seniors and teens and $4 for subteens. The theater box office is open 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and 1 to 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

For tickets or information, call 375-4916 or 649-5561.

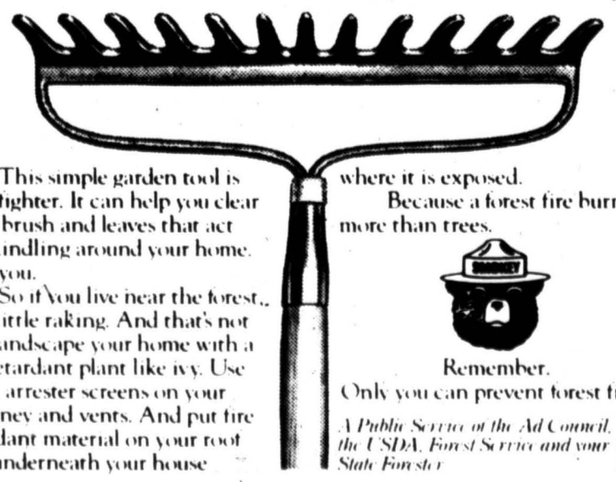
HOW THIS RAKE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.



This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house where it is exposed.

Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

Remember.
Only you can prevent forest fires.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Commission of the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea will conduct a public hearing in the City Hall Council Chambers, located on the east side of Monte Verde Street between Ocean and Seventh Avenues, on Wednesday, 18 April 1990. The meeting will be called to order at 3:00 P.M. possible.

1. Public hearing on the Sunset Center Draft EIR. The Draft EIR describes several alternatives for parking at Sunset Center. The preferred alternative consists of two separate parking structures located on the Eighth Avenue and Tenth Avenue sides of the Center. The Eighth Avenue garage would remove the existing parking lot and construct a 270 space, three-level structure with access on San Carlos Street. The roof of the garage would contain a public plaza. The Tenth Avenue garage would remove the surface lot and buildings at the south end of the Center and construct a 337 space, two and one-half floor parking structure. The Sunset Center's central parking lot and entrance would be converted to a new public plaza and entrance linked to the new garages and San Carlos Street.

The purpose of the Draft EIR is to provide information for the public, Planning Commission and City council. The EIR assesses the adverse environmental impacts of the proposal, identifies mitigation measures and evaluates alternatives to the proposal.
